NAZI SOLDIERS IN BUCHAREST; BRITISH LEAVE

Trucks Carrying Troops Pass Through Capital at Noon Today.

By The Associated Press

BUCHAREST, Oct. 12—Large open trucks bearing German flags and packed with German soldiers carrying bayonetted rifles passed through Bucharest streets at noon today.

The procession was headed by small cars bearing German officers and standards. Simultaneously squadrons of airplanes again droned over the capital and oil fields.

As German officers promenaded the streets and held conferences, British officials said military and naval attaches with their staffs, as well as commercial staffs and many clerks were leaving immediately under London orders for nationals to depart.

The Nazi troops which rolled through the capital today were believed to have arrived by way of the Danube.

It was believed other German detachments were taking up positions in the Rumanian oil fields.

British Break Near

As a result of the German move, a final diplomatic break between Britain and Rumania was considered in Bucharest to be inevitable. London's action in ordering British nationals to leave Rumania and the freezing of Rumania credits in the United Kingdom, added to the belief a formal break was near.

German sources referred to what they described as the danger of a sudden attack by the British air force and by Britain's Mediterranean fleet in claiming to have seized the initiative.

(Observers recalled that when the Germans marched into Norway, Denmark and the low countries earlier this year they stated they had been impelled to act to forestall British designs on those countries.)

The exodus of British nationals from Rumania—ordered by London a few hours after tightly-packed formations of German, Italian and Rumanian planes zoomed over Bucharest—continued apace. Virtually all the Britons were expected to be gone by Monday night.

Warning from Turks

There was no comment from the Bucharist government on Britain's action in freezing Rumanian credits throughout the empire on the heels of similar action by the United States. There was silence, likewise, with respect to a Turkish radio warning that Anatolia would be defended by 2,000,000 men in the event German military forces continued through the troubled Balkans into the Near East.

The pro-Nazi Iron Guard regime of Premier Antonescu appeared to be preoccupied with "Rumanianizing" industry and with its campaign for favorable intervention of the axis powers in the Rumanian dispute with Hungary over Transylvania.

Both countries, claiming their minorities in the region recently ceded by Rumania to Hungary were being mistreated, asked Italy and Germany to intervene.

An Iron Guardist commissar took over the American-owned Rumania telephone company last night and said Iron Guardists would be selected to take over all the important executive posts eventually. This was a part of the government's announced program to place all foreign-owned companies under Iron Guard direction.

Turkey's warning, broadcast from Ankara, impressed circles here as evidence that Turkey was taking all possible precautions to forestall a possible invasion, but nevertheless was awaiting crystallization of Moscow's attitude.

DISPLAY OF FLAGS MARKS COLUMBUS DAY HERE

Flags decorated the uptown section of the city today in observance of Columbus day. Banks, buildings and loan company offices, and practically all city, county and state offices in the city are closed in honor of the 448th anniversary of the discovery of America. No celebration of the anniversary was planned.

BRICKER TALKS IN MORROW CO.

Governor and Cong. Smith Heard by 4,000 at Mt. Gilead Outing.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, O., Oct. 12 — Four thousand persons, the largest crowd ever to gather for a political meeting in Morrow county, heard Governor John W. Bricker and Congressman Frederick C. Smith of Marion, both candidates for re-election, when they appeared as the principal speakers at an ox roast staged yesterday afternoon at the Morrow county fairgrounds by the Morrow County Republican club.

Governor Bricker, after referring generally to state affairs, devoted his talk to the administration's record in Morrow county.

Old-age pension payments are $16,633 more this year than during the last year of the Martin L. Davey regime, the governor said, and this year there are 574 Morrow county residents receiving pensions, whereas in the preceding administration there were 505.

Cites School Payments

Morrow county schools received $37,829 more under the Bricker administration than during Davey's last term of office, and about $40,000 has been paid on the interest charge that the county contracted in borrowing on its school funds against the sales tax during the Davey term, Governor Bricker said. During the Davey administration the Morrow county local school boards borrowed $150,000 against the sales tax, he said, adding that the state has

MISUSE OF WPA LIST CHARGED AT FINDLAY

By The Associated Press

Misuse of a WPA labor for private work in Hancock county was charged by Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith of Detroit in a speech at a political rally in Findlay last night.

Smith, chairman of the Committee of One Million Campaigning for Wendell L. Willkie, asserted he had affidavits to prove that WPA workers had been ordered by their superiors to leave public projects and do such work as cleaning out a private ditch and building a private driveway.

Carrying his third term bid to Sandusky voters, former Gov. Martin L. Davey reiterated his promises of increased old age pensions and predicted that he would defeat Gov. Bricker by 250,000 votes.

At Ashland, Governor Bricker guaranteed every young man in Ohio "fair treatment" under the compulsory military service law.

Davey also spoke in Ashland with John McSweeney, Democratic candidate for U. S. senator, who asserted government spending had increased purchasing power and stimulated industry.

In a radio interview at Canton, Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland, Republican opponent of McSweeney, advocated "invincible national defense" to keep America at peace. He also demanded that the government "decrease, rather than increase," its competition with private industry.

IDLE FACTORIES CALLED SIGN OF NEW DEAL

Willkie in New England Declares Punitive Laws Keep Plants Closed.

By The Associated Press

ENROUTE WITH WILLKIE TO ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 12—Wendell L. Willkie today called a smokeless factory in Lowell, Mass., a symbol of the New Deal and declared that "punitive, restrictive laws" had made it impossible for the United States to recover quickly from the depression.

Hatless and tanned from a month's outdoor campaigning, the Republican presidential nominee stood in the center of Lowell common to close the automobile portion of a swift-moving two-day swing through industrial Massachusetts.

Under a bright autumn sun, Willkie spoke earlier before thousands in two other big Massachusetts manufacturing communities—the boot and shoe city of Haverhill and Lawrence, a textile center—before boarding his special train for Worcester and the western part of the state.

Government, he said in Lowell, "should see that there is no dirty play" in the country's economic life, but added that there should be fixed rules "which can't be changed in the middle of the game."

Wants Rules Fixed

Under the New Deal, the candidate said, "you can sit in the grandstand and make more goals than the fellow on the field. And the result of that is that everybody takes to the bleachers and you have smokeless factories here in Lowell."

"I would like to see the competitive teams of business start to play again. I want them to play under rules. I want the rules to make the game faster and cleaner instead of stopping it altogether. There are literally thousands of people in this country who want to play the game of business."

"The government that does not believe that its people can be employed will never see to it that they are employed," he said in a prepared speech for a Lawrence, Mass., audience.

"A government that preached defeat can never win any battle against unemployment or against any foreign foe."

Willkie asserted in Boston last night that President Roosevelt "says that Hitler and Mussolini would like to see him defeated this November. He does not say this directly...he insinuates it. He leaves the real job to his hand-picked candidate for vice president and his hand-picked governor of New York.

"Dragging the European war into our domestic elections is not a responsible act. It is a reckless one."

Speaks at Harvard

Late in the afternoon he had stopped at Harvard square in Cambridge and told a crowd of students that the special train carrying President Roosevelt into Pennsylvania and Ohio was being financed partly by the public.

Willkie asserted that "this is no military inspection trip," because, he said, "the President took aboard in Pennsylvania the Democratic candidate for senator and other Democratic officials."

In a later speech at Lynn, Mass., Willkie contended that operation of the train was "a controvention of the Hatch act and the corrupt practices act."

"That campaign tour," he said, "under the guise of a military inspection tour is playing politics with the defense of the United States."

"If we have an irresponsible government in Washington during the next four years, I believe that democracy will fail," said the Republican presidential nominee in an address in the National league ball park in Boston.

Declaring in his prepared text that "the candidate for the third term has chosen this most critical time to violate one of our oldest traditions," Willkie continued:

"And what reason does he give

Blaze Spreads From Basement To Upper Floors

Guts Entire Building; Firemen Get Flames Under Control After Battle of Over 3 Hours.

Fire gutted the J. C. Penney Co. store at 187 West Center street today causing a loss estimated at $150,000.

At mid-afternoon, more than three hours after the fire broke out, flames still kept firemen from getting inside the store to determine accurately the extent of the damage, but it was believed that little or no merchandise could be salvaged.

About 2:30 Chief McFarland reported the flames were getting under control and were being driven toward the rear of the store. He described the fire as "on the downgrade" for the first time since it started at 11:30 a. m. today.

Inventory Estimated

Cutler A. McGrew, store manager, said he believed an inventory of the merchandise would have totaled between $100,000 and $150,000.

Charles E. Merkel, who with Dr. A. Rhu owns the building, placed the damage to the structure at $25,000.

100 Flee From Store

More than 100 customers and clerks were forced to leave the store, many of them hurriedly after remaining inside as long as possible in the hope of bringing the fire under control with extinguishers.

Several employes had burned clothing and singed hair as they gathered in the street after firemen from two stations took over the job of fire fighting.

Manager Cutler A. McGrew, his clothes stained from the foam of fire extinguishers and his hair badly singed, said he believed all employes and customers were out of the store before the smoke became so dense that it blinded and choked the volunteer fire fighters.

Employe Calls Firemen

Mrs. Maurice Anthony, an employe, called the fire department and then leaped out a door at the rear of the store, jumping about seven feet to the ground. She was not believed seriously injured.

Clouds of smoke not only fogged the entire uptown area but became so thick in the immediate vicinity of the store that heavy damage to merchandise in nearby buildings was threatened. The stock of the Sutton & Lightner store nearby was taken from the store to prevent smoke damage, and in nearby upstairs apartments heavy smoke damage was threatened.

All Firemen Called

All available firemen were called to duty, including those who ordinarily were off duty today. A total of 31 firemen were on duty, using nine lines of hose to pour hundreds of thousands of gallons of water into the building in their more than three-hour battle to bring the flames under control.

The fire was discovered about 11:30 by Richard McCormick, 17, of 491 Olney avenue, a senior at Harding High school who works after school and on Saturdays as a clerk.

A short time before parcel post and express company workers had unloaded a large pile of boxes containing merchandise at the rear of the store. These were on the ground near the opening of a large chute through which merchandise is slid to the basement for unpacking.

"I had been putting this newly-delivered stock in the basement when I saw smoke coming from under the chute," McCormick said.

"We had unpacked considerable other merchandise during the morning, and the cardboard cartons were piled nearby inside the basement," he continued.

"I called to Francis Fairchild of the Edison pike, another employe, and he called for help and grabbed a fire extinguisher. The extinguisher gave some trouble and didn't seem to work just right. Mr. McGrew, who came down when Mr. Fairchild called, also seized an extinguisher. Several other employes came down and at one time there were about four extinguishers in use.

"After the flames started in the cardboard cartons, they seemed to spread all over the rear part of the basement in an instant, and before we could get them under control the flames were scorching the basement ceiling."

While Mr. McGrew and other employes were trying to bring the fire under control, they called upstairs and spread an alarm. While the other employes and customers left the building Mrs. Anthony notified the fire department.

McCormick estimated that he and the other workers were in the basement only about 15 minutes before the dense smoke and heat drove them upstairs. When city firemen arrived the smoke was so dense they could not enter the building, and could not see through the smoke to locate the flames.

Not until shortly before 1 o'clock, when the flames broke through the main floor, were they able to play their hose lines directly on flames. Prior to that time they had been pouring water somewhat blindly into the areas of the basement known to have been burning.

Eats Through Floor

The fire first broke through the main floor at the extreme rear, blazing up in the shoe department.

Immediately above the main floor, at the rear, is the balcony containing women's ready-to-wear merchandise. It was from this balcony level that Mrs. Anthony leaped to the ground.

Mr. McGrew first expressed the opinion that a carelessly thrown match or cigaret had started the fire. He said the match or cigaret might have been thrown on the ground just outside the chute and been sucked into the basement by the draft of air that usually comes in the chute while merchandise is being transferred to the basement. The same draft helped fan the flames.

However, later in the afternoon he said that sparks caused by wire-bound packages sliding down the unloading chute may have been responsible. He said, after conversing with Assistant Manager C. W. McCorkle that a large package bound with steel tape had been slid down the chute shortly before the fire was discovered. Similar packages had caused sparks to fly from the steel-ribbed chute in the past, and these might have been sufficient to cause a small blaze to start, he said.

There was no electrical wiring in the immediate vicinity of the section of the basement where the fire started.

Breaks that developed in the hose lines of the fire department caused momentary delays, but were quickly repaired. Fortunately, a supply of new fire hose recently purchased by the city was delivered this morning and firemen had not yet had time to install it on the trucks when the fire call came at 11:30.

PRESIDENT IN COLUMBUS ON DEFENSE TOUR

Stops in Capital To Visit Fort Hayes Enroute to Dayton for Speech.

By The Associated Press

ABOARD PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S TRAIN ENROUTE TO DAYTON, O., Oct. 12—President Roosevelt rode into Ohio's capital, Columbus, today on a defense inspection trip that served as a prelude to a radio address on preparedness tonight to the whole western hemisphere.

Mr. Roosevelt arrived by special train from Akron and started off for the army's Fort Hayes amid the applause of crowds crammed into the streets along the route.

Governor Bricker, Republican seeking reelection, and former Governor Davey, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, met Mr. Roosevelt at the station, with Ohioans wondering whether either or both would be invited to ride in the President's open car.

Under White House arrangements, it was Bricker, as chief executive of the state, along with Mayor Floyd F. Green, Columbus' Republican mayor, Davey got into his own car farther back in the procession.

The President was late leaving the station after having met a batch of local politicos aboard his train.

Crowds Cheer

Once out in the streets, the crowds whooped it up as Mr. Roosevelt drove by. Children whirled along on bicycles until police stopped them. Hawkers were out with cards of Roosevelt buttons, and from WPA state offices on High street, the main business thoroughfare, a yellow chrysanthemum waved from every window.

From other buildings, bits of torn paper filtted down.

The caravan of cars paused in front of the statehouse. Since it was Columbus day, Maj. Gen. E. M. Watson, the President's secretary and military aide, and Captain Daniel J. Callaghan, naval aid, laid a wreath on the statue of Christopher Columbus in behalf of Mr. Roosevelt.

The President is to speak at Dayton tonight at 9 o'clock over all domestic networks and by short wave to Latin America.

NAZI TORPEDO BOATS RAID BRITISH SHIPS

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Oct. 12—A German torpedo boat flotilla was reported today to have sallied out of a continental port and fought a sea engagement off the isle of Wight with British light naval forces.

The result of the engagement was not known immediately. The Isle of Wight is off Southampton on the southeast coast of England.

Informed sources said the German flotilla had encountered British submarines, destroyers and torpedo boats.

DNB, the official German news agency, said today it had learned that the exact British air losses from July 10 to the present day comprised 2,950 planes, of which 1,800 were fighters and the remainder light and heavy bombers.

New waves of German war planes, meanwhile were reported carrying the two-months-old air siege to London, and DNB, official news agency, quoted reports that fliers saw flying great clouds of smoke floated over the city after bombs were dropped this morning.

SUNDAY'S horoscope is moderately propitious for all ecclesiastical and community affairs, which move happily and profitably. However, the mind may trend toward some conflicting or over-inflated ideas, which had best be submitted to sound considerations before putting grandiose plans into action.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of advancement and good fortune, provided they do not indulge in too flighty, inflated and opulent ideas or ambitions which might be falsely evaluated or overreaching. Be guided by sound values and wise counsel of elders or the experienced.

A child born on this day may be disposed to conflicting viewpoints on important matters, making wise decisions difficult, without the wisdom of its superiors. It will swing between the grandiose and opulent and pessimism and doubt.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a particularly lively and exciting day with much enterprise and incitement to definite and drastic action, probably in connection with large corporations, political, of fraternal groups in which radical measures of wide scope may be projected. But changes may be needed and these should be calmly weighed, without impulse, strife or passion.

Those whose birthday it is may look for an exciting and productive year in which large issues of far reaching effect on political, fraternal or humanitarian groups are at stake. Refrain from quarrels, bitterness and impetuosity. Some unexpected changes may be in order, affecting surroundings, plans and contacts.

Evangelical and Reformed Churches To Mark 3 Anniversary Events

Special Services To Start Sunday at Salem and First Churches; Mass Meeting on Nov. 3.

Starting Sunday, Salem and First Evangelical and Reformed churches will celebrate three anniversaries, the 225th year of the Reformed church in the United States, the 100th year of the Evangelical Synod of North America, and the fiftieth anniversary of the Hungarian church.

Services Sunday and next week will climax in a mass meeting of Evangelical and Reformed churches of Marion county on Sunday night, Nov. 3, at 7:30 at First church. The combined choirs of the churches will sing. Dr. O. B. Moor, pastor of the Evangelical and Reformed church of New Knoxville, O., will be the speaker.

History of Church.

Rev. H. C. Ahrens, pastor of Salem church, and Rev. E. H. Wierth of First church, prepared the following statement regarding the tri-anniversary celebration.

"Early in the Eighteenth century German refugees from the Palatinate fled to England and then to America in search of religious freedom. Most of these settled in Pennsylvania, in the basins formed by the Delaware, the Schuylkill and Susquehanna rivers.

"As no Reformed ministers were available, these settlements called a schoolmaster, John Philip Boehm, to serve them. On Oct. 15, 1725, he administered the first communion to the Falkner Swamp congregation 40 miles north of Philadelphia. Boehm called this 'the first beginning.' Thus was born in America the German Reformed church.

"When, a century later, Americans began taking advantage of the Louisiana Purchase, German immigrants came up the Mississippi and settled in the vicinity of St. Louis, Mo. To serve the religious needs of the Germans in the far west the missionary societies of Basmen and Basel sent missionaries to this region. On Oct. 15, 1840, six of these missionaries gathered in the parsonage of Rev. Louis Nollan of Gravois Settlement in Missouri and organized the German Evangelical Church Society of the West. This organization developed into the Evangelical Synod of North America.

"Both churches grew in numbers, establishing churches not only in the United States but in China, Japan, India, Africa, Iraq and the Honduras. Denominational colleges and seminaries were established at Lancaster, Pa., and Webster Groves, Mo.

"In June of 1934 the officers of the two church bodies met in Cleveland and arranged the merger which took final effect in June of this year.

"The united church has more than 3,000 pastors and mission workers and serves approximately a million men, women and children . . ."

All events at Salem and First churches on Sunday and throughout the week, including meetings of the various societies, will emphasize the anniversaries.

The church programs for Sunday and the coming week follow:

Spiritual Wealth

Text: "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."—Matthew 5:3.

THE other day a young man said to me, "Will you explain what that text means, which says, Blessed are the poor in spirit?" Finding that this text is rather puzzling to many people I will pass on the explanation. That word translated poor refers to a person, and would be better understood by us if it were rendered beggar, as it is in the case of Lazarus who laid at the rich man's gate. So it would be much clearer if we were to read it, Blessed are the beggars for the spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

Many have taken this text and tried to get comfort out of it when they were spiritually impoverished or backslidden. But Christ did not intend to teach any such thing as being blessed while you are lost out spiritually. But he meant that if a person becomes as desperate in his begging for the spirit as a beggar does in his begging for food he would be blessed, because he would soon receive the kingdom of heaven. Christ did not intend to place a premium on spiritual poverty, but he wants us to be spiritually rich by inheriting the kingdom of heaven. It is a good thing to come to the place where we are willing to be a beggar for the spirit, but God wants us to move out of this state quickly and become a son of God, an heir of God and joint heir with Jesus Christ. He who has been born of God and come into posession of the heavenly treasures in Christ Jesus cannot feel poverty stricken any longer. But he feels like singing with Hattie Buell,

"My Father is rich in houses and lands,
He holdeth the wealth of world in his hands!
Of rubies and diamonds, of silver and gold,
His coffers are full, he has riches untold.
I'm a child of the king, a child of the king.
With Jesus my Saviour,
I'm a child of the king.

DAVID felt mighty poor one day when his sins caught up with him and he cried, "I am poured out like water, and all my bones are out of joint: my heart is like wax; it is melted in the midst of my bowels." But he got delivered from all these sins and then he stood up and sang, "The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me lie down in green pastures; he leadeth me beside the still waters."

Paul felt mighty poor on his way to Damascus to kill the Christians, when he saw that great light and fell to earth and cried out, "What will thou have me to do Lord?" But this same Paul felt mighty rich as he laid his head on the chopping block and shouted, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept faith: Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteous judge shall give to me at that day."

Let us get out of the beggar state and become rich in Christ.

CHURCH TO DEDICATE NEW FLOOR, FLAGS

Emanuel Lutheran Service Also To Mark Anniversary.

The Sunday morning service at Emanuel Lutheran church will be a celebration of the tenth anniversary of the formation of the American Lutheran church and will be the occasion for baptism of children, the initial appearance of a new junior choir and dedication of American and church flags and new flooring in the Sunday school and recreation rooms.

The official body of the American Lutheran church is now meeting in Salem church in Detroit. Five hundred thousand dollars was sought to pay off $353,000 church indebtedness, and to provide a fund for additional projects. Emanuel church of Marion gave $1,100.

Rev. William Freytag of Cardington and Carleton Case of Emanuel church of Marion are attending the Detroit meeting as clerical and lay delegates from the area comprising Marion, Morrow and Wyandot counties.

The Sunday celebration is in observance of Aug. 11, 1930, when, at St. Paul's Lutheran church in Toledo, the Buffalo and Iowa synods and the Joint Synod of Ohio united in a single church body and chose the name, American Lutheran church.

Emanuel church's new flags, sponsored by men in the congregation who served in the first World war, will be placed at the front of the church, near the entrance to the chancel.

Of heavy taffeta, four by six feet, they are on nine foot standards, the American flag standard topped by an eagle, the church flag standard topped by a cross.

So we hitched our wagon to a FIREBALL*

—and gave these smarter, roomier cars even more sensational PERFORMANCE than before

THIS formidable example of precision machinery you see above is the new 1941 Buick FIREBALL engine.

It takes its name from what happens inside it.

Like all engines that hold major speed records on land, sea and in the air—like the famed General Motors new Allison aviation engine—it is valve-in-head type.

It represents 39 years of the development concentrated on valve-in-head design—and it stands today as the one engine in the land that really capitalizes on the new and better modern fuels.

The pistons in this Buick FIREBALL Eight are found in no other automobile engine:

THE FIREBALL DOES IT!

Modern gasolines have high octane ratings to permit higher compressions without 'ping.' Note how this piston, which can be used only in valve-in-head engines, rolls the fuel charge into the shape of a flattened ball that centers around the new smaller, racing-car type spark plug. Fired at its very heart, this more highly compressed fuel lets go with such full forced 'ping free' wallop that any gasoline of 75 octane rating (now available at standard fuel prices) may be used in the 115 hp. engine. Any fuel of 80 octane rating serves in the 125- and 165-hp. engines.

Cupped in new contours to complement the dome of the cylinders, they roll the inrushing fuel charge into a flattened and turbulent ball, packed fat with potential power.

Concentrated about the racing-car type spark plugs, that explosive ball is fired from its very heart.

So great is its extra thrust that the same-size engine which last year developed 107 horsepower now pours out a super-efficient 115—and delivers more miles per gallon throughout the whole performance range on regular-priced gasoline!

This is the Buick FIREBALL principle, latest development of Buick's exclusive Dynaflash design.

There's still more to the story in the wonders worked by Compound Carburetion.

A standard part of Buick SUPER, CENTURY, ROADMASTER and LIMITED engines, this fuel-supply system lets you travel at fifty on the same meager fuel ration you ordinarily expend to get thirty, and delivers up to 10% or 15% more miles per gallon of gasoline.

You can have it in your Buick SPECIAL for a small extra charge—and step up your 115-horsepower engine to a walloping 125.

But in big engine or bigger, you get plus-power from less gas—even the 165-hp. 1941 engines giving more miles per gallon than last year's 107-hp. engines at speeds above 40!

*According to the Encyclopaedia Britannica, a super motor is "A powerful mixture of types of explosives like the high velocity of a great projectile is called a "FIREBALL."

BUICK PRICES BEGIN AT $935 for the Business Coupe shown

Delivered at Flint, Mich. Transportation based on rail rates, state and local taxes (if any), optional equipment and accessories, extra.

YESTERDAY: On their way to the court of the Prince of Shani Lun lovely Lynn Britton and her escort, Temu Darin, have arrived at the Mongolian monastery of Pallichao, from which a party issues to meet them. Frightened though she is by what amounts to her captivity, she still cannot hide her interest in Temu a Mongolian with great experience in the Western world.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN
Terrible Message

"THE trail forks at the foot of Pallichao," Temu said, "one branch going south to a mission on the Yellow River; the other continuing on west is our road to Shani Lun"

She looked at him with rising anger. "Our road! How sure you are of yourself!"

His eyes held hers. "I want you to be sure of yourself, too"

"I am sure you will pay for this"

"I'm not harming you," he said reasonably.

She threw up her hands in despair. "You're quarreling with me and spoiling the scenery." They both laughed That, she felt, was the most maddening thing about her nature; her special weakness, a sense of the ridiculous that adulterated any particular power of rage she might possess

Temu's mount had been restless all the time Now, he sidled up to Lynn's camel and snarled and ground his teeth. Lynn eyed him doubtfully.

"He's a big, black, Bactrian brute!" She stumbled a bit over the words.

"Speak it swiftly," Temu commanded.

"He's a big, back, Blactrian boot!"

They both laughed again. "The poor fellow's showing symptoms of being in love," Temu explained. "Last month, he had a fight with a rival male and they almost killed each other, wound their necks together and twisted and wrenched and kicked and bit the flesh from each other's bodies"

'I think I prefer horses," said Lynn.

Suddenly, as if resenting her remark, the big beast swung and spat his cud at her, a huge mouthful of a soupy substance that seemed to Lynn like green grape pie and smelled like a chemical experiment gone wrong She could hardly breathe

Temu dismounted swiftly and brought down Lynn's camel, then helped her off with her sash and Mongol coat, laughing helplessly and apologizing, both at the same time

"I'm sorry, so sorry"

Lynn was half laughing and half crying herself Fortunately, but little of the mess had struck her face

"Is there any in my ear?" she asked.

He looked. 'Clean as a sea shell," he reported

Lynn shuddered, fanning her face with her hands. "I'll never smell right again, I fear"

He broke into another gale of laughter.

"So sorry I never dreamed he'd do such a thing"

"Men on foot know they have to be careful of camels but a mounted person is seldom assailed Now you have been really initiated into caravan life You are one of us" Because the air was cool he wrapped a rug around her shoulders while they awaited the horsemen's approach

Dick's Letter

They were staying over a day in Pallichao, Lynn had been informed, to give the animals a day of good grazing before they entered the stony desert with its bitter water The camp was set up at the foot of the hill below the Monastery.

Lynn, who was very tired, woke in the morning refreshed remembering that Sherdock and Temu had promised to tell her why she was being compelled to go to Delun. They sat after breakfast in the dining tent, Sherdock in his priestly yellow robe, Temu and the Duchess in their Mongol garb, and Lynn in a soft, knit dress of silvery blue with white at the throat and wrists, which made her look particularly feminine and exotic in these surroundings

Chin Pak brought in the dispatch case and Temu took from it the envelope address in Dick Britton's handwriting Handing it to her, he explained, "This is the final communication your brother sent to the Prince"

Lynn drew out the letter with trembling fingers.

My sister does not know the truth. I could not have persuaded her to leave America had I told her she had been asked not merely to visit the court at Delun, but to become its princess She is the last girl in the world, I have since discovered, who would be agreeable to a marriage arranged after the French custom.

I took her to the temple village hoping that there I could break the news to her, but I found it impossible If ever a girl requires courtship Lynn is that girl. However, I have brought her here and turned her over to Sherdock according to agreement. So I consider that I have earned the marriage settlement.

The rest is up to you. She is at your mercy. Knowing you, I imagine you will take her and marry her, and knowing what a poor deal life is anyhow, I imagine she will not find you as dull as that American banker she might have married

Tell her whatever you wish.

DICK BRITTON.

Lynn sat a moment stunned, unseeing, the paper falling from her fingers

"To think that Dick would do this to me!" she whispered, and added presently, "I suppose that somehow I made it easy for him"

He had practically sold her to this Oriental and deceived him in the buying, had let him believe that an American girl would willingly come to him as a bride, satisfied with a marriage arrangement made by a member of the family

Presently her eyes focused on Sherdock, his face calm and serene as he fingered his beads She turned and looked at Temu He met her glance, his face watchful, expressionless, but she noticed that his knuckles were white as he gripped the arms of his chair Perhaps he had not been as confident as Sherdock and the Prince that there revelations should be made They explained many things

"Now, what do you think?" he asked in a level tone

"It's incredible unbelievable! Weren't you educated with the Prince in Europe and America?"

"Yes," he agreed frowning

"Didn't you both learn that no intelligent American girl would willingly accept such an arrangement?"

"The Prince took your brother's word You must remember that he is very much in love with you, and with the least encouragement a man in love believes what he longs to believe"

"But you, the Prince's friend, you weren't in love"

He shrugged and smiled faintly "Mine not to reason why——"

She looked at the letter again "Dick implies that the Prince might try to force me to marry him"

Temu spoke quickly "The Prince wants you to come to Delun so he may talk this over with you"

"There is nothing to say"

"He thinks there is. He's very much in love with you, convinced that you belong to him and he to you"

She turned to Sherdock "Oh Sherdock, you're a wise man and a good man! Can you be a willing party to this?"

The priest sat in silence looking at her, breathing on her as it were, his peace and serenity

"I love the Prince very much" he said "Let me tell you about him He needs you."

Lynn sat back in her chair as Sherdock continued "My family has ruled Shani Lun since the breaking up of the empire of Kubla Khan My brother, the Prince, had no male heir but it was revealed to me that our illustrious ancestor had incarnated and would be found as a child in a village of herdsmen north of Koko Nor I would know him for he would come to me of his own free will and speak the words of our sacred mantra"

Lynn listened impatiently as he went on "I headed the cavalcade that went in search of the little Prince And among the black tents in the grasslands north of the lake we found a child six years of age, whose parents had been murdered by robbers Somehow the boy had escaped the fate of his elders, and attaching himself to a band of herdsmen, had managed to survive

"The natives presented their own terrified children who stood dumb before me as is natural with the wild children of the grasslands They cuffed the orphan waif whenever he came near

"But the child was alert and spirited and driven by an inner knowing Character and power already displayed themselves in his features, he was a comely child despite the dirt and rags in which I found him Presently he forced his way to me, placed his hands on my knees fearlessly, and looking me straight in the eyes, he repeated the sacred mantra again and again with insistance and without prompting Aum mani padme hum"

Lynn listened rather breathlessly now, impressed by Sherdock's profound sincerity She could picture the child, terrified and bewildered, his parents murdered while he was left to scavenge the camps of brutal Tibetan nomads or to die But that was no life to join with hers

The priest smiled a little the light of love and tenderness bringing a glow to his face "I took him to Delun The Prince became his father and I his teacher I believe he had a very happy childhood When he grew older, I took him and several sons of our nobles to the Western world for further education"

Lynn glanced at Temu "Sons of nobles?"

'There were 10 of us," he said "We had a splendid time but it was always good to get back to our own plains and mountains" He and the Duchess smiled at each other.

"After the death of my brother," Sherdock went on, "the young prince traveled no more to foreign lands. Then one day your picture came to Delun The next day your brother came We consulted the stars and the spirits of the sages A marriage was arranged It has long been predicted that the Goddess Tara would come from the West in her next manifestation" He bowed "We have found you"

AFTER SEVEN YEARS

Editor of The Star After over seven years of wasteful muddling and bungling of our economic and social affairs and neglect of our national defense, the New Dealers are now trying to make national defense a political issue The prospect of controlling the expenditure of at least $12,000,000,000 during another "emergency" and the great "indespensable man" is the lure with which Mr Roosevelt hopes to perpetuate himself and his satelites in public office. This defense spending is to be another "shot in the arm" of the tax burdened people to make them less sensitive to the crushing load of debt now imposed upon them

One of the many New Deal "investments" charged up to the taxpayers and about which Mr Roosevelt is not talking, is the unwarranted purchase of foreign gold and silver at highly inflated prices and now totaling $25,000,000,000 These purchases still continue and enable our potential enemies to establish credits for war supplies which may be used against the United States For example, the New Deal's "easy" foreign policy enables Japan to buy military necessities to carry on the undeclared and ruthless war against our friend China and now, these purchases may be used in a war against us.

Some atonement for the New Deal's betrayal of the American people could be made by using this $25,000 000,000 hoard of gold and silver to pay for national defense through the issue of United States notes, secured by this monetary metal This would relieve the already overburdened taxpayers and would force some much needed, real money into circulation There could be no dangerous Inflation, because the grand total of $300,000,000,000, representing our gigantic public and private debt, is based on less than 3 per cent of that amount in actual cash in circulation with which to pay our debts Over 90 per cent of our circulating money is paper "promises to pay dollars on demand," but the only available dollar today is the silver dollar whose present bullion value is approximately 25 cents

The New Dealers would like to claim Abraham Lincoln, along with Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson, although there is no evidence of similarity in the political philosophies and accomplishments of those great Americans, as compared with the record of Franklin D Roosevelt During the financial crisis of the Civil war, instead of borrowing "promises to pay dollars" from private interests, honest Abraham Lincoln exercised his constitutional rights and authorized the issue of $346,000,000 in United States notes. Secured by the ample wealth and credit of the United States this issue of real money is still in circulation today and has saved the people an incalculable amount in interest and taxes. Forgetful of the "forgotten man," Mr Roosevelt will go down in history as the greatest peace time inflationist of debt and credit and the grand champion of the American "tax racket" which is relentlessly confiscating the hard earned wealth of the people

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1940

United for Defense

MARION county is giving appropriate expression to its patriotism these days.

Yesterday in a ceremony at the courthouse there was dedicated a memorial plaque honoring soldiers of the Revolutionary war whose burial places are in the county. Tomorrow a program will be given as a tribute to National Guardsmen of the community who will leave soon to prepare themselves for defense of the democracy made possible by those heroes of the Revolution, should such defense become necessary.

Both tributes are evidence of the spirit of loyal and unconquerable Americanism which prevails not only in Marion county but in all other counties throughout the nation. It is the spirit of a united people which assures a solid front at home as well as among the men who shoulder arms should an enemy dare to attack.

The program at the Star auditorium tomorrow, arranged for the general public under sponsorship of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, a 100 per cent American organization, will demonstrate this unity of forces. It will let the National Guardsmen know that Marion county honors them for their readiness to serve their country and also that the home folk are prepared to join with them in any steps that may be necessary to preserve the nation and its institutions.

The meeting is arranged as a community event and everybody is invited. There should be a response sufficient to fill the room to overflowing. All who attend will be performing a service of patriotic citizenship.

Angel on Dog Sled

ANGELS of mercy are not always feminine. History records none more tender and devoted in ministrations nor more rugged and daring in his pioneering than Sir Wilfred Grenfell, "Good Samaritan of Labrador," who has just died.

As a young doctor trained among the poor in London slums, he sailed 42 years ago in a small boat to visit the people of Labrador. He found them without doctors and without medicine and he spent the rest of his life ministering to them. By boat, by dogsled and afoot he made the world's bleakest coast his clinic and the Indians, the Eskimos and the fisher folks his patients.

The zeal which drove him into the Arctic winter on his errand of mercy inspired others to help and a chain of hospitals, schools and nursing stations with 60 doctors and more than 100 volunteer workers grew up in his path.

Knighthood was bestowed in recognition of his devoted heroism but his greatest monument is in the love and gratitude of the people he served out on the forbidding outposts of civilization. He was the Good Samaritan of his generation.

Answer to the Axis

AMERICA is hard to bluff, as the triple axis knows by this time. While mouthpieces of the dictators shout threats, the United States says relatively little but it does much.

While Hitler and Mussolini warn against aid to England this country follows the sale of destroyers by increasing the shipment of newer and more powerful planes to England, by sending some of its old World war tanks to Canada and by supplying some of the merchant ships England needs to transport her commerce.

While Japan rants, this country backs up its embargo on steel scrap by curbing the shipments of wheat and flour to feed Japanese soldiers and by an understanding with England in the opening of the Burma road.

There is the possibility that these moves may be steps along the road to war if the dictators decide to back up their threats with action but they are all moves which tell the world and especially its militarists that this nation cannot be bluffed away from its determination to continue such aid as it can provide, under international usage, to the countries battling the aggressors. A stand like this increases America's stature among the nations.

No Time for Humanity

THERE is no place in modern warfare for any display of human sympathy, even for little children, and a great humanitarian movement has collapsed in the face of ruthlessness.

Following the death of more than 200 children in a refuge ship torpedoed at sea, England has announced that no further attempt will be made to evacuate children to this country or to Canada. America has responded generously to the plan of providing homes here for the little ones but German U-boats look upon a shipload of children as legitimate prey and the danger of an ocean crossing is as great as the danger from bombs.

Children of both England and Germany have been among the bomb victims, for an airman a mile high cannot be particular in selecting his victims. By refusing to grant safe passage to little children fleeing to a haven of safety, however, Germany has written another entry in the chapter on ruthless savagery.

News Behind the News

Congress Fighting Adjournment in Belief It Can Help Avert War.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—Real reason why congress refuses to adjourn is that the Republicans long ago wholeheartedly agreed the continuance of congress was necessary to prevent Roosevelt from taking steps which would lead to war, and a group of about 40 house Democrats have taken the same view.

Mr. Roosevelt's marshals have done everything possible to get them out of town in accordance with the wishes he publicly expressed as far back as June. They called Democratic representatives back recently from the campaign hustings for argument and a check. The canvass showed that despite the Democratic majority of 90 on the roll of the house, they lacked 30 votes of passing an adjournment resolution.

Paul Mallon

None of the wary ones claim to have any information on what Mr. Roosevelt might do if they adjourned. They are merely working on the assumption that their presence will act as a restraint.

Well-steered rumors were around town a week ago suggesting a break with Japan was possible before election. These finally crept into public print the middle of the week. But they could be traced to the growth of alarmed opinion in the cabinet and defense branches of government, rather than directly to the White House. (Forecast in column of Oct. 7.)

In fact most of the internal evidence the congressmen have received has been of a quieting nature. The senate cloakroom has heard confidentially for instance, of the experience of Senator Homer Bone of Washington with the President at a conference some weeks ago.

Bone, contending that one particular step the President had taken would lead to war, expressed to him a willingness to bet even money that this country would be in conflict within three months.

Mr. Roosevelt shot back an offer of 5 to 1 that the country would not be in war within six months.

Division

A small group of strongly placed men in the state department are quietly disagreeing with the course of the far eastern policy. Their view is that this country is hauling nine British chestnuts from that fire for every one of its own. The British stake in the far east is ten times ours by any material measurement.

The dissenters are keeping quiet, however, because even unofficial expressions might weaken the hand of the administration in dealing with the crisis.

No important split will develop, or even become apparent.

G. O. P. Cheered

Heartening Republican polls are coming in to the national chairman, Joe Martin, but are not being made public. His private survey of New York state claims 63 per cent of the upstate vote and 37 of the New York City polls—which is not far away from the figuring of most unbiased politicos. It is solid enough for the Republicans to hope for a slight edge in that most important state.

A compilation of replies received from Democrats circularized by a Willkie organization has likewise given Martin ground for expecting a large secret vote. From 600,000 cards sent out, 200,000 approving replies were received, an unprecedented percentage in such type of survey.

Johnson

Ex-assistant war secretary, Louis Johnson, the wandering boy of the New Deal, is not going to wander into the Republican camp. Some consultations were held which gave rise to Republican hopes and rumors. But Johnson has decided definitely his political future lies on the Democratic side.

His associates are boosting him for the war secretaryship in expectation of Henry Stimson's early retirement. Stimson's health will not permit him to continue indefinitely.

Verification

After the appearance Monday of this column's forecast that exlabor board Chairman Madden would be sidetracked for a Perkins' labor survey in Canada, denials were offered Monday and Tuesday. Mr. Madden left on the Canadian mission Wednesday.

Draft Queries Answered

Pastors and Ministerial Students Exempt from Service.

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—Here are the last of a series of groups of answers to some of the million questions that young men, their parents, relatives and friends are asking about selective service:

Q. I am a sophomore in a theological seminary, studying for the ministry. Am I exempt?

A. Yes. But you must register if you are of draft age. Ministers and men who are studying for the ministry are in one of the few groups designated in the law as exempt.

Q. I am a chemist, working for a company which does not now have any defense orders but expects to get some. Will I be drafted?

A. The fact that you are a chemist does not exempt you, and your case will be one for your local board to decide. It is considered unlikely that local boards will impair any potential defense business by taking men the firms cannot spare, but you must bear in mind that the military forces also need chemists and mechanics and scores of other classifications.

Q. I have just finished my internship and have been taken on as assistant to an older physician with an established practice. Will I be called into service?

A. It is very likely. Doctors and dentists are not exempt under the law. The Army needs doctors and dentists. Your local board probably will reason that since you have not an established practice, the sacrifice you will have to make will be small. It is said here unofficially that it is likely established physicians and dentists will be asked to take reserve commissions.

Q. (Also by the young doctor.) If I am drafted, will I be just another private in the ranks?

A. If you are, you certainly have a squawk coming and should make it. Men will be classified at the reception centers and from there you should be ordered into the medical service. An army officer, who is one of the high selective service officials, told me recently: "It certainly is not the purpose or intent of the Army that any doctor or dentist or skilled worker or professional man in a field that the military forces need be handed a pack and a gun and told to march."

Q. I maintain legal residence in Omaha, Neb. Do I have to return there to register?

A. No. You can register in any district in which you happen to be on Oct. 16.

Q. I have been married seven years. My wife works and is self-supporting. I have no other dependents. Will I be conscripted ahead of married men who support their wives?

A. Not necessarily. As I have pointed out before, there is a tendency on the part of selective service officials to skip the degree of dependency altogether and I happen to know that if some of them had the entire responsibility of interpreting the draft act, they would defer all married men (with probably the exception of those who are not even self-supporting). They simply feel that for the psychological and moral good of the country, it is better not to disrupt marital relationships unless conditions become more critical than at present. These officials at the moment are in the majority and it is likely that this "loose" interpretation of the dependency clause in the law will prevail.

Q. I am the father of three children. My wife died a few years ago and there is no close relative who could take care of the children. My wife's will left the children (all minors) sufficient incomes to make them independent of my earnings. But if I were called into service, I don't know what would happen to our home. Do you think I will be called?

A. I don't think you will be. I refer you to the answer to the previous question. If the demand for manpower far exceeded the supply, you probably would have to come into the service, but at present the supply of manpower is adequate and I know it is the intent of national selective service officials not to work any drastic hardships on the American home. This is another of those problems that will have to be solved by your local board and, as in every borderline case, you have the right of appeal.

Q. I won't be 21 until next year. Do I have to register then?

A. The President, under the law, is empowered to order additional registrants whenever the need demands it. Since no one knows what next year will bring, it is impossible even to guess at the answer to this question. If world conditions continue critical, it is likely that the President will order registraion each year for the approximately 1,000,000 men who come of age every 12 months.

Excessive Partisanship in Campaign Called Bad Politics for Either Side.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THE unbridled partisanship against which George Washington so solemnly warned his countrymen in the farewell address is not only a danger to the state: it is also bad politics in an American presidential election. I have followed closely eight presidential elections, and I can think of no case where the winner got himself elected as the result of his attack upon the loser.

Walter Lippmann

In 1912 the attacker was Theodore Roosevelt, but with the Republican party split Wilson could not help being elected. In 1916 Hughes attacked and Wilson won. In 1920 the Democrats were as badly beaten before they started as were the Republicans in 1932; the smearing of the Wilson administration in 1920, like the smearing of the Hoover administration in 1932, only added an unnecessarily bad smell to a foregone conclusion. In 1924 Davis attacked and Coolidge stood on his dignity. In 1928 Al Smith attacked and Hoover floated in on the tide of prosperity. In 1936 Landon attacked and he was a badly defeated candidate before Roosevelt had even begun to campaign. In the only two instances, 1920 and 1932, when the winners have attacked the losers bitterly, it will be agreed, I think, that the winners would easily have won anyway.

Why Attacks Don't Win

There are very important practical reasons why bitter partisan attacks do not help to win presidential elections. One reason is that while they please those who are already converted, they offend and repel those very voters who are most needed, the independent and hesitating voters. The very fact that these voters are undecided means that they see assets and liabilities in both candidates, and to come to them shrieking that one of the candidates is a rascal and a traitor, and what not, strikes them as a reflection upon their own judgment and character. If they were prepared to believe the worst of one candidate they would not be undecided. If the hesitant voter thinks that there is much to be said for Brown and much to be said for Jones, you do not persuade him by bawling at him that there is nothing to be said for Brown, and that only a very bad citizen could fail to see that Brown is totally contemptible. Yet the bitter partisans never make votes, they have to persuade voters. They seem to think that they are getting results when they raise the temperature of their own followers from hot to boiling.

But that is not the only disadvantage in conducting a campaign by the method of bitter all-round attacks. There is also the fact that since any national party is composed of men and women with varying views and diverse interests, the blows of the attacker usually do as much damage among his own followers as among his opposition. That is why wise politicians, like Coolidge, to mention only those who have passed from the scene, make it their policy never to exacerbate the so-called "issues" of a campaign; they know only too well that on concrete measures of government policy the lines of public opinion, of group and of sectional interest, do not coincide at all with party lines.

Both Sides Hurt

In this campaign, for example, each party in turn has been hurt when it has sought to make an issue of foreign policy. These sharp issues are two-edged knives which cut both ways, and a seasoned politician who is talking to the nation, and not merely to a like-minded local constituency, will not monkey with issues of this sort.

That, incidentally, is why politicians who have spent their political lives nursing one small constituency almost never know how to manage a presidential campaign. They think that by emphasizing in each locality the issue which gets the most votes in that locality they can assemble a national majority. But they forget that what they are saying in one place is, during a presidential election at least, known in all the other places. So what happens is that while they are winning votes in one locality by appealing to a local opinion they are losing them in other localities where people have a different opinion.

There are, of course, campaigns in which the result is a foregone conclusion. The tide of events is irresistible. But that is not true by any means of all campaigns. It was not true in 1916, in 1936 and is not in 1940. In a campaign where the result is not decided in advance by circumstances, the strategy of a campaign is very important, and my impression is that in a campaign of this type it is not the winner who knocks out the loser. It is the loser who defeats himself.

Prolific Goose

By The Associated Press

HATTIESBURG, Miss.—An unsuspecting wild goose may have introduced a new kind of rainbow-hued corn hereabouts.

E. L. Bass, a farmer near Sumrall, said he extracted some seed from the craw of a wild goose two winters ago. From them, he has grown corn that has purple cobs, purple shucks and white grains that turn red when wet. Bass said the corn silk at first is white and with black tassels, changes to purple as the stalks grow.

A Family Man

If He Lives Up to All Tests Women Require in Letter He Just Doesn't Exist at All.

By DAMON RUNYON

(Editor's Note—These are more extracts from letters which Damon Runyon has received in response to the invitation, extended through this column, for women readers to send him their definition of the model family man).

* * *

"ACCORDING to my standards my husband might qualify as a good example of a true family man. He shares in our little successes, is sympathetic when the occasion demands and bolsters up our courage. The companionship of his family he prefers to the world outside. His children have been set a good example by his attendance at divine services every Sunday. The best references of him may be attested to by his own who could truly say with Edgar Guest, 'Beneath our roof lived laughter and content'."

Mrs. M. E. H., Richmond Hill, N. Y.

"MY IDEA of a family man is not necessarily a stay-at-home. Men and women should have interests outside the home.

"If he is a family man, and I mean a good one, he should see to it that his wife has enough money to do something, too, when he is down town on business two or three nights a week.

"Like taking in a show, eating dinner out or having a few friends in for bridge. You'd be surprised how many husbands think the dear little wife would stay at home 'where she belongs.'

"If he is out of the city on one of his many conventions, he should arrange to have his wife and family go to the seashore or visit her family while he is gone. He should by all means leave the family car at home.

"He should never keep his family waiting for dinner and should always call up if he is late or if he is bringing home a guest. My family man need not be temperate and he can play poker if he wants to, but he should not worry his wife by driving home in an intoxicated condition, nor should he play cards at when he loses he is depriving his family of some necessity.

"If it kills him he should at least appear interested in what the children are telling him at the dinner table and he should never tell them not to bother him when they ask for his advice about home work. When he tells them he is 'too busy' that is usually the time he goes to sleep in his favorite chair. A good family man does not do that.

"My family man need not go to church but once in a great while when the children ask his as a special favor to attend because they are on a program, he should go, and not answer 'who, me?' when they ask him. I like to think of a family man saying 'dear you need a new dress' instead of saying 'again' if the wife asks for a new one once a year.

"It has been said that a wife has the well known 'gimmies' but many times she has to, as most men never notice the furniture getting shabby, the rugs threadbare, or the wife needing a new permanent. He should never assume that resigned look when legitimate bills have to be paid, but it is his privilege to storm and carry on if they are extravagant.

"To sum it all up, my family man can do what he darn well pleases, as long as he is a fair provider, kind, tolerant, respectful and cooperative in the home. A large order, maybe, but it can be filled."

Mrs. X, Glendale, Calif.

"A FAMILY man is a man who is absolutely in love with his wife, fond of his children, makes every effort to be with his family every minute he possibly can and enjoys being with them, often speaks of them to his associates and is always proud of them. Is faithful, fair, honest, sincere, dependable, understanding, tolerant, appreciative, generous, helpful, cooperative, tidy, kind, reasonable. Never jealous. Has faith. At least all these qualities insofar as it is humanly possible to have them."

Mrs. E. S., Halloway Ave., San Francisco.

"THE definition of the term family man is a man who loves his wife, his home and his children, if any, better than he does himself, and if that is the correct definition, he doesn't exist."

Mrs. A. J., West 71st St., New York.

Railroad Revival

From The Baltimore Sun

During the lean years of the depression, and even before that, there were those who saw the railroads following the stage coach and the canal barge into the discard. There is no question that, with the competition with trucks and automobiles and the decline in carloadings resulting from the stagnation of industry, the railroads were in a bad way.

More recently there have been growing indications that the railroads are taking a new lease on life, indications which are further borne out by the financial reports just released for the first eight months of 1940. As compared with 1939, the net income of the Pennsylvania has jumped from $39,113,083 to $48,059,619; of the New York Central, from $15,015,633 to $23,077,005. The B. & O. shows an increase in net revenue during the same period from $12,746,063 to $17,911,613 and the Western Maryland an increase from $236,829 to $1,274,370.

Undoubtedly the increase in revenue is primarily attributable to the increase in freight.

From the standpoint of the traveling public, which is concerned more with its own comfort than with earnings, it is gratifying to learn that the railroads have increased their net incomes while at the same time offering passengers a 2 cent fare and such modern luxuries as air conditioning, new coaches, broad windows which admit of a view of the country, comfortable seats and lunch bars in place of the more formal and more expensive diners.

While the railroads have been stimulated by what may be regarded as temporary conditions, their present situation encourages those who, even in the darkest days, contended that nothing could replace them as handlers of the bulk of the nation's traffic.

Anecdotes of Ohio

By GILBERT F. BODDS

George Davenport, a founder of Davenport, Iowa, apparently was destined to be plagued by an ill-starred fate.

While serving as a common seaman, he attempted to save another sailor from drowning in New York harbor, but broke his own leg. His ship sailed while he was recovering in the hospital.

To obtain money, Davenport joined Gen. Anthony Wayne's expedition to quell the Indians in the Ohio country wilderness. After serving throughout the campaign upon the Miami Indian confederacy, he fought in the War of 1812.

Moving west, he prospered in trading furs. A residence he built in 1833 on Rock Island is preserved as an historic site in the Mississippi river valley. In 1835 he and a few associates bought a tract of land in Iowa and laid out the town of Davenport. On Independence Day, 1845, Davenport was slain by robbers.

Firemen Battle Flames in Penney Store

...when the fire broke out. ... had just handed ... a $10 bill from which ... to be taken for the ... when the warning was ... hear the store. The ... and clerk left the store to ... went to a nearby hard... made change and ... respective ways.

The Penney Co. building is a ... structure, being twice as ... the ordinary single store ... The main floor is 60 by 120 ... a balcony is 25 by 60 feet ... and an upstairs floor, devoted to ... display of toys, is 80 by ... feet. It was built in 1929.

Mr. McGrew estimated there were some 30 employes at work today, and that possibly 100 customers were in the building when the fire broke out.

This week the Penney store was celebrating its twentieth anniversary in Marion.

Large Crowd Gathers

A crowd of some 2,000 persons quickly gathered around the store. Police were kept busy keeping spectators back of the safety line.

The density of the smoke lessened about 1 o'clock, but this was due to the fact that the flames were getting a better draft from the windows firemen had broken open. As air reached the flames, the interior of the store began to roar, making a rumbling noise that could be heard a block away. About 1:15 seevral firemen said there wasn't a chance to save it."

Early in the fire, city firemen found the smoke at the basement windows so dense that even gas masks were of little help. Several firemen were momentarily exhausted from inhaling smoke, and had to be helped to fresh air before they could resume work.

Residents of nearby apartments, although not in the same building, evacuated their homes because of the almost overpowering smoke. Business rooms nearby were also filled with smoke. The Moskin clothing store, just west of the Penney store, took steps to move out its merchandise. The Kent clothes store nearby also moved out some of its merchandise.

Shortly before 1:30 Chief McFarland reported that it was almost a certainty the entire first floor would be gutted by the flames. It was impossible to tell the extent of the damage to the second floor at this time, he said, but added that the flames might reach the second floor before they were brought under control.

Experiences of Clerks

Two of the women employes who counted themselves lucky this afternoon are Miss Dorothy Thew of 241 West Fairground street and Mrs. Mary Haberman of 606 Cleveland avenue. They had been out to lunch and were just about to enter the store when the smoke and people starting pouring out the doors simultaneously.

Smoke drove back two employes, Mrs. R. A. McEvoy of 538 Miami street, and Mrs. H. M. McColley of 374 Pearl street, who tried to get to the balcony where they had left their wraps and purses after returning from lunch. Mrs. McEvoy had completed the sale of a pair of hose at a counter at the front of the store, and Mrs. McColley was clerking in the men's department on the first floor when they saw the smoke.

Miss Blanche Mills of 433 Elmwood drive was waiting on a customer who had purchased a spool of thread. Miss Mills was dropping the thread into a paper bag when she looked up and saw the smoke. She dropped the bag on the counter as she and the customer fled from the store.

Mrs. Mildred Miller of 786 Bennett street, in charge of alterations in the ready-to-wear department, was working on the balcony when she noticed the smoke. She slipped out a back door and down an outside stairs.

Miss Virginia Jackson, 22, of 137 Kenmore avenue, was working in the front of the store and had just completed the sale of a pair of hose when she saw the smoke and dashed from the store.

Child Loses Shoe

When the fire broke out one of the young women clerks was waiting on a couple and their seven-year-old daughter. The smoke continued to get worse and worse until the mother said that she didn't know what the others were going to do, but she was getting out.

They all went, the little girl wearing only one shoe, leaving the other behind.

When the father discovered the shoe had been left in the store, he tried to dash back into the smoke filled store and had to be restrained by three or four men.

The shoe remained inside.

The fire extinguisher which gave store employes some difficulty—the first one they seized in an effort to stop the fire when it covered an area of only a few square feet—was among a group of extinguishers which had been sent out from the store last week for checking and refilling. Incidentally, last week was national fire prevention week.

The fire couldn't have started in a worse place in the basement, store employes commented. The cardboard boxes caused the flames to spread quickly over such a large area that there wasn't much chance to check them with small extinguishers. When the flames really got under way, the coal bin was only a few feet away and when this became enveloped in flames it not only burned persistently but threw off such tense smoke that firemen were both blinded and nauseated.

Fence Falls, Boys Hurt

Several boys were bruised when a board fence at the rear of the Van Atta Hardware store collapsed. A number of boys had been leaning on it or sitting on top of it to watch the proceedings.

Four of five Marion National Guardsmen who happened to be at the scene in uniform were pressed into service as "police" by Police Chief Marks. They served in handling the crowd and traffic.

Many of the community's guardsmen have been wearing their uniforms regularly for the last few days, in anticipation of a call to duty.

The exterior of the building was little changed by the fire. The large display windows at front were not damaged and smaller windows at the front on the second floor bore only cracks. Windows at the side, however, were shattered.

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN FORM ORGANIZATION AT LA RUE

A meeting to organize the Democratic women of LaRue and vicinity was held yesterday afternoon at a tea given by Miss Susie Rabb of LaRue. Mrs. Grace Zachman of Marion, Democratic candidate for county recorder, was the principal speaker. Mrs. Clifford Stoll, acting president of the county Democratic women's organization, talked on county work. Mrs. Harry Haflich of Marion talked on organization, Mrs. C. G. Ritzler of Marion talked on women voters and Mrs. Lewis Uhl of Marion announced a luncheon meeting next Tuesday at Hotel Marion. Others attending from Marion were Mrs. Harry Haberman Sr., Mrs. Lula B. Arnold, Mrs. E. A. Schultz and Miss Stella Kraner.

RESTAURANT AT LA RUE NAMED IN LIQUOR CITATION

Mrs. Inez Irene Rush, LaRue restaurant operator, today was cited to appear before the state department of liquor control at Columbus next Wednesday to show cause why a 3.2 beer permit issued to her should not be revoked, The Associated Press reported.

Mrs. Rush is charged with violation of a state liquor law which makes it illegal to keep whisky or other spiritous liquor in an establishment licensed only to sell beer. Deputy Sheriff Gene Geissler said he and three state enforcement agents visited Mrs. Rush's restaurant last Saturday night and found and confiscated a partially-filled bottle of whisky.

building by Maj. Gen. Campbell Hodges, commandant of the corps area. Troops were lined up at attention while a band played the national anthem.

Before one building was a company of recruits, not yet in uniform, while a line of mechanized equipment was drawn up for inspection at another point.

The fort, dating back to 1861, was named for President Rutherford B. Hayes. It controls military activities for Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia, including 92,000 men in the regular army, reserves, national guard, ROTC and CCC.

Drives To Village

Leaving the fort, the President drove to Poindexter village, a modern community of 246 rowhouses and flats erected on a site formerly cluttered with 350 slum dwellings. It is a Negro low-cost housing project — the average rental for a home is $12.40 a month—constructed as part of a national slum clearance program by the United States housing authority.

Mr. Roosevelt stopped for a few moments in the village and its residents packed solidly around his car, school children waving flags.

As in Youngstown and Akron yesterday, tens of thousands of people were out to see the President.

At Fort Hayes, headquarters of the army Fifth corps area and the Fifth CCC area, a 21-gun salute crashed out in front of a barracks building as the Chief Executive entered the gateway.

Retracing the route to the station, the President boarded his train and left for Dayton, where, prior to his broadcast, he was to inspect Wright field, the Wright memorial and a veterans' facility.

Capt. Elliott Roosevelt, the President's second son, who got his commission a few weeks ago, is stationed at Wright field.

Mrs. Mildred Jaster, Democratic national committeewoman for Ohio, and Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, veterans administrator, traveled with the Chief Executive from Columbus to Dayton.

S. H. Brennan, Dayton's Republican mayor, was to meet the Chief Executive and Orville Wright, one of the two brothers who pioneered heavier-than-air flight, was asked to be present when Mr. Roosevelt stopped at the Wright memorial.

In a grave period of war and world chaos the President selected Columbus day to amplify, aids said, the theme of "all for one and one for all" in inter-American relations and to report on what his own country is doing to make itself invulnerable.

The immediate background of the address was a tour of defense facilities in Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Concluding the first phase of a two-day trip into the neighbor states at Akron, O., last night, the President bespoke confidence that "we shall be able to avoid being brought into war through attack by somebody else on the Americas." He added, however, to thousands of persons packed around his train at the station, "but I also believe, and I think most of you do too, that the best way to avoid an attack is to be ready to meet one."

Dayton Inspection

At Dayton the President was to inspect a veterans' hospital, the Wright memorial, the Army's Wright filed, and visit the home of former Gov. James M. Cox, Democratic presidential candidate in 1920 when Mr. Roosevelt was the vice presidential nominee.

Mr. Roosevelt's special Columbus day message was read at a rally of the Italian Dressmakers' union, Local 89, by Luigi Antonini, state chairman of the American Labor party.

"Among the groups which have unceasingly toiled, and greatly contributed to the success of the American ideal of free men are the millions of Americans who are proud of their Italian inheritance, but whose loyalty to America is unquestioned," the President said.

HUNTERS FIND BODY OF MISSING JUDGE

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Oct. 12—Two duck hunters found the body of Common Pleas Judge Robert E. Sage, sought for murder in connection with the fatal shooting of two business associates in his chambers in the county building, on an island in the Detroit river today. Judge Sage had drowned and the body was washed ashore.

Identification was made through a key found in Sage's pocket and through a tailor's label in the suit worn by the drowned man. The key was to the hotel room of a friend from which the gun used in the double killing was taken.

Judge Sage had been sought since Oct. 1 on a murder warrant in connection with the deaths of Ralph and Alfred Nadell.

Many Feared Dead in Attack on Liverpool Hostelry by Planes.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 12 — Bombs smashed houses in London today in a mid-morning raid that set off the city's 198th alarm of the air war after a night of scattered attacks in which uncounted dead were feared buried in the wreckage of a Liverpool hotel.

Rescue crews found several persons alive in the Liverpool hotel, struck squarely by a big bomb. But the rest of the staff and guests were somewhere beneath the heap of rubble.

To the battle of bombs was added the war of guns. Long range British and German batteries on opposite sides of the English channel thundered for more than three hours in their longest bombardment. Big shells exploding at three-minute intervals shook the coasts of southeastern England and Nazi-held France.

Nazi Bases Suffer

From bases back of the smoking guns the royal air force roared eastward for new blows at the Nazi concentration points along the coast. Bombs were dropped near Calais and Cape Gris Nez lighthouse, where two big German coastal batteries were firing.

Although London, as usual, bore the brunt of the overnight air raids on England, 12 other districts were attacked. A communique said these were in Scotland, Wales, northwestern, northeastern and southern England.

Casualties were described as "light" in London, and "very light" elsewhere.

Three British fighting planes pursued a group of Dornier bombers which attacked Liverpool. Three of the raiders were reported shot down. The British reported five other German planes destroyed and nine British planes lost.

Two big explosives were disclosed to have fallen yesterday near the grounds of a country home where United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy is staying. Cottages were wrecked and 11 persons injured. The ambassador was unhurt.

Sultan's Friend Killed

Near damaged Canterbury cathedral, 40 miles southeast of London, a bomb yesterday killed Lydia Cecily Hill, 27-year-old showgirl upon whom the fabulously wealthy Sultan of Jahore showered gifts inscribed "with all my love."

The 67-year-old sultan, who once gave $2,500,000 toward construction of the British naval base at Singapore, sobbed when informed of her death.

Miss Hill was trying on a fur coat in an expensive shop when she was killed.

A German aviator who jumped by parachute from his damaged plane was captured in the mountains of Wales.

assumed the interest charge by taking over the entire debt. Another $40,000 will be paid this year, he predicted.

So far the present administration has kept up its payments to schools and already has paid three million dollars on the eight million dollar school debt that the Davey administration left, the governor said.

He spoke highly of the Morrow county Republican candidates and urged the election of Frank I. Griffin as state representative.

Cong. Smith's Talk

Congressman Smith dealt with federal finances in his talk, which preceded the governor's.

"We find our national treasury, after seven years of some of the most wasteful spending any government ever indulged, in serious distress," he said. "We find this condition prevailing at a time we need a solvent treasury—when our finances should be in the soundest condition.

"We are now forced to spend large sums of money for extraordinary defense purposes which adds to the gravity of the situation. In the face of the foreign situation and our own foreign policy we are forced to vote large sums of money for defense. All of us are agreed on this point. There is no serious division here. But this should not blind us to the necessity of doing everything possible to maintain our finances in the best of condition."

Judge Wieland Presides

Common Pleas Judge Philip Wieland was in charge of the program and Don White of Mt. Gilead, chairman of the Republican executive committee of the county, presided.

A short talk was given by State Senator Walter Nickles of New Philadelphia. The Mt. Gilead High school band furnished music.

French Crow, Marion County Republican chairman, and J. D. Williamson of Marion were among guests introduced.

Governor Bricker arrived on the grounds at 4:30. He said he had been too busy to have lunch and was one of the first to be served after the program. Last night he was to appear in Mansfield and Ashland.

DAVEY, BRICKER MEET

Exchange Greetings While Waiting For President.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 12 — Ohio's two gubernatorial candidates met today while they waited on a platform under Union station for the arrival of President Roosevelt's special train.

Martin L. Davey, Democratic candidate, spied Gov. John W. Bricker and walked over to him.

"Hello, governor," Davey greeted, thrusting out his hand.

Bricker smiled and shook hands with Davey.

The governor rode with Mr. Roosevelt in the procession to Fort Hayes and Poindexter village. Davey followed several cars back in another machine.

OVERLORD OF CRIME IN CHICAGO CONVICTED

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—William R. Johnson, pictured by federal prosecutors as the overlord of Chicago's organized gambling, was convicted today on charges of evading income taxes.

Five of eight co-defendants were convicted on charges of aiding Johnson in his efforts to defraud the government of $1,887,864 in taxes on a 1936-39 income of $3,377,615.

Democratic Leaders Jam Station To Greet President's Train in Capital

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 12—President Roosevelt arrived here on his special train shortly before 10 a. m., today for an inspection of Fort Hayes and the Poindexter housing project.

On the station platform as the presidential special rolled into the crowded depot were Mayor Floyd Green, former Gov. Davey, Postmaster Nathan A. McCoy, Democratic State Chairman J. Freer Bittinger, John McSweeney, Democratic nominee for U. S. senator; Francis W. Durbin and Stephen M. Young, Democratic candidates for congressman-at-large, and Ferd Pickens of Democratic state headquarters.

The parade moved to the statehouse between lanes of cheering people. Governor Bricker and Mayor Green rode with the President.

After a wreath had been placed on the Christopher Columbus statue, the procession completed a three quarter circle of the state house and then proceeded toward Fort Hayes and Poindexter village.

The village, a $2,000,000 low-rent housing project for 420 Negro families, had a flurry of excitement 45 minutes before the President's arrival.

Six Negro boys marched down a street carrying placards which read: "We want jobs. No WPA. No third term." Spectators tore up three of the signs while a patrolman halted the boys with the others.

"That's a shame, boys," said the officer, W. M. Good. "It's a disgrace. Throw those signs away."

A Negro woman spectator said "some white woman back in the alley" offered the boys a dollar apiece to carry the signs.

In front of the Mt. Vernon avenue elementary school, 600 pupils, each with an American flag, waved to the President when he appeared later.

A peddler hawking campaign buttons encountered stiff competition in party workers who distributed them free.

USE RADIO TO TRACE UNDERGROUND RIVER

By The Associated Press

BELLEVUE, O., Oct. 12—Amateur radio operators literally will have a field day tomorrow.

Equipped with portable sets, scores of operators plan to aid a fellow amateur—Henry J. McFerren, blind Tiffin manufacturer—in an experiment to trace the course of Bellevue's sometimes troublesome underground river.

A two-pound radio has been encased in a rubber ball which will be dropped into the stream at nearby Seneca caverns. Amateur operators will attempt to pick up tones on their sets and follow the river's course by means of cross-readings.

WILLKIE

for this? Does he tell you that there are more jobs than there were four years ago?

"Oh, no! He says that Hitler and Mussolini would like to see him defeated in this coming November.

"Do you care what Hitler thinks or what Mussolini thinks?

"Are you going to take either of these gentlemen into the voting booth with you next November?

"No one in America has any use for these men except the third-term candidate. He thinks they can win for him."

The candidate argued that the administration campaign would cause embarrassment to "millions of Italian-American citizens."

"They have a right to vote just like anybody else," he continued. "But they don't want to vote on European issues. They want to vote on American issues."

Declaring that the next administration "will bear the awful responsibility of keeping us at peace," Willkie added that "we can have peace — but we must know how to preserve it."

No Boys to Europe

"To begin with," he said, "we shall not undertake to fight anybody else's war. Our boys shall stay out of Europe.

"But we shall appease no one. We stand for our democratic institutions and we stand ready to defend them with our lives."

Contending that the administration has failed to build an adequate defense, Willkie declared that "we have plenty of talk but few tanks; plenty of plans but few planes."

President Roosevelt, he said, cut more than $500,000,000 from war department budget estimates in 1939 and "did this when the very calamity he warned against was happening."

Earlier, before coming back to a crowded and confetti-strewn reception in downtown Boston, Willkie asserted again and again in impromptu speeches that the New Deal was trying to divide the nation into classes, while he was fighting for national unity.

Willkie kept his talks brief, but he repeatedly emphasized three contentions:

1. The nation must build a powerful defense to protect itself against danger from without.

2. Domestic economy must be made prosperous to assure continuance of democracy at home.

3. The country must be unified and must cooperate in working out national problems.

"The policy of the New Deal has been to divide and rule," the candidate told an applauding crowd at Fall River. "It has pitted class against class and section against section. In spending your money it has favored other sections of the country at your expense.

"And it does this not to promote industrial production, but to promote political profit."

NUMBER OF DRAFTEES FROM STATES FIXED

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—Estimates of the number of military trainees to be supplied by each state on the first draft call were being completed today by selective service officials.

The figures, to be announced soon, will be used when the first call to arms under the conscription program is sounded, probably in mid-November. Subdivided within the states they will decide the number of draftees to be furnished by each of the 6,500 conscription areas in the country.

Officials reported that the estimates were based on the number of men expected to be eligible for service in each state, with a credit to each for its share of the 1,015,471 regulars and reserves of the present army, navy and marine corps.

In this connection, enlistment figures were made public showing that New York, the most populous state, has an estimated 77,351 men now serving in the nation's fighting forces, with Pennsylvania second at 68,299 and California, third, at 66,668.

County's Draft Officials Announced

master's and track supervisor's office of Chesapeake & Ohio railroad; president of Marion Central Labor Union (A. F. of L.)

Appeals Agent

Russell M. Wilhelm of 190 West Columbia street; attorney in firm of Wilhelm & Robinson.

Advisory Board

E. Paul Bachman of 607 King avenue; assistant cashier of National City Bank; secretary of city sinking fund trustees; Community Fund treasurer.

Harry L. Dowler of 196 South Greenwood street; attorney in firm of Strelitz, Dowler & Wiedemann.

J. W. Llewellyn of 212 St. James street; insurance business; retired army reserve officer.

In nominating men for the five-man draft boards, the recommending committee paid special attention to selecting men who live in the district in which they will serve. In both the city boards all five members live in their draft districts. In the rural board, four of the five members live outside Marion city and the fifth member, W. Hoover Brown, although living in Marion, has wide farming interests. Dan L. LaMarche, although his address is King avenue, lives outside the city limits in rural Marion township.

Makeup of Boards

Business, farming, the professions and the villages are represented on the rural boards.

The city boards also contain a representative membership, including a labor union official on each board.

Effort was made wherever possible to name men who do not have sons subject to conscription and who are themselves beyond the draft age limit.

All the 27 men recommended will serve without pay. There is no pay either for the precinct workers who will handle the draft registration.

Prior to authorizing announcement of the names today, Gen. Light sent notifications to many of the recommended officials throughout Ohio's 336 draft districts telling them they had been recommended and urging them to act promptly to set up their machinery.

One Board Organizes

One of the three Marion county boards, the one serving Wards 1, 2 and 3, organized yesterday afternoon. The members, in a two-hour session in the law library at the courthouse, selected a chairman, secretary and a regular office. These will be announced later.

The other boards are expected to organize over the week-end. The board for the rural section of the county was tentatively scheduled to meet this afternoon.

After organization of the boards, the chairman of each or a member designated by him will go to Memorial hall in Columbus for an instruction meeting next Wednesday, Oct. 16, at 10:30 a. m. Then final instructions will be given.

This day, next Wednesday, will be registration day for virtually all Marion county men between the ages of 21 and 35, inclusive. Few are exempt by the draft law.

Preparations for Registering

The men must go to their regular precinct polling places between 7 a. m. and 9 p. m. and answer 11 simple questions. The Star published the questions this week and persons who must register are advised to have their answers ready when they go to the registrar's desk. The questions will also be posted at the precinct polling places on registration day so that the men may assemble their answers before going to the desk to register. Each registration should average 20 minutes.

The county election board, under whose supervision the draft registration will be handled, has called a meeting of all the 342 Marion county residents who will serve as registrars in the 57 precincts next Wednesday.

The meeting will be held at the common pleas courtroom in the courthouse Monday at 8 p. m. at which time final instructions will be given and registration supplies issued. Presiding judges of each precinct should bring their certificates of appointment.

Registration First Steps

The registration of the young men will be the first step in setting up the draft. The 27 draft officials recommended for the county are not expected to have much to do until after registration, when their work will actually start in earnest.

It is estimated about 6,740 Marion county men will register Wednesday. They will be among 16,404,000 in the country as a whole.

Within a few days after registration, a drawing of a lottery will be made in Washington to determine the order in which draft registrants will be called to service. Within five days after this lottery, the men to be called first will begin receiving copies of a lengthy questionnaire. Mailing in daily lots of about 30 for each 30,000 of population should start about Oct. 30-31, The Associated Press reported.

To Classify Registrants

On the basis of answers to these mailed questionnaires the registrants will be placed in one of four major classes: I, Available for service. II, Deferred because of occupational status. III, Deferred because of dependents. IV, deferred specifically by law or because unfit for military service.

Each case of deferment will be decided by the local draft boards on its own merits. A man's importance to his job, no matter whether the job is blending perfume or milling gunpowder, will be the main consideration in occupational deferments. Getting a job in a so-called "defense industry" won't help, The Associated Press reported.

Duties of Draft Officials in Brief

The duties of the 27 men whose recommendations were announced today are briefly as follows:

Draft Boards—These are known as local boards and are made up of men living in the county where they serve. They decide which men will go into military training. Rules and regulations have been made at Washington for the boards to follow, so that all registrants will be assured of fair treatment.

Registrants' Advisory Boards—There is one of these three-man boards for each draft board. According to a recent announcement from Washington these boards are "made up of persons who are willing and glad to help you fill out your questionnaire, without charge." They are established solely to help registrants especially with the questionnaires which soon will be mailed.

Government Appeals Agents—These men, one for each draft board, are all attorneys in Marion county. It is their duty to protect not only the interests of the government but also the interests of the men registering. Their work, as the name indicates, centers around appeals of registrants from the decisions of draft boards.

The Calendar

THE calendar pad is beginning to get pretty thin, the vacation picture postcards sent by friends (and greatly appreciated by us) that decorate the desk are getting dingy and are not nearly so alluring as they were a couple of months ago and we're taking a nose dive right into the lap of old man winter. And, unless you're one of those lucky critters that can flit off to warmer climes, you'll take it and, for your own comfort, you'd better like it. Now that we're really convinced that summer is'nt with us any more, how many of those "musts" we had on our mental calendar did we carry out. (whose face is red now) We're in favor of somebody, we don't care who, issuing a proclamation something like this: "Stop what you're doing, right where you are and get caught up with yourself." Take back some books we've had longer than we like to remember, return a picture that the very thought of how long we've intended doing that very thing makes us break out in cold perspiration, write those letters that haunt us in the stilly night, read those books we promised ourselves. Those toss us into the sloughs of despond—how about you?

Thriller

FOLKS who like excitement will find it in Marjorie Roberts' book, "Webs in the Sky." It tells of romantic dangers of artists in metal who make new roadways that hang from the sky. All of the bustling activity of a big bridge actualy being built, the incessant din of the riveting, the shrill shrieks of the whistles, and the spider-men perched perilously aloft makes the book fairly throb with action. When the lusty crew's work is done the men seek fun in the soft starry nights of New Orleans, and forget their jobs in flirtatious and other charms of the city. The author paints in her word pictures a pair of lovers on a park bench with the same magic she draws the action of men and machinery. Her book is a moving story of the little known lives of the hardy gamblers who shake dice with death on the high, narrow girders

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

How Mary's Escapade as a Masked Cabaret Dancer Drove Veritzen to and Over the Verge of Insanity

THERE WAS a bitterness in Philip Veritzen's voice as he spoke about Mary's escapade as a masked dancer which I knew was subconcious. But I also knew it reflected the cold anger he had felt toward her in that long ago time when through the machinations of Grace Draper and Jack Leslie she had disobeyed his strict commands for her routine as a potential Veritzen star, and, unknown to him, indeed to any one of us who loved her so dearly, had gone secretly to the cabaret where Jack Leslie was an entertainer, and danced there, masked.

She paid dearly for her indiscretion and her disobedience, our lovely, winsome and wilful Mary. Jack Leslie's evil sated eyes had looked on her covetously whether from desire, or because of his secret hatred of Noel, who as a violinist in the same cafe had openly betrayed his love for Mary. Only the bravery of Noel, and the wisdom of Hugh Grantland had saved her from Jack Leslie's plot to compel her to marry him.

"If Mary had been anyone else under my training," Philip Veritzen's weary voice went on, "I should have dismissed her without hesitation and with a finality which would have barred her forever from the Veritzen productions. But—I sensed Noel's overweening interest in her, and realized that harshness to her would probably mean hastening a marriage which I swore to myself never should take place.

"There was but one thing for me to do, I decided, and that was to pretend ignorance of the whole affair, and go on as if nothing had happened. But when I realized that Noel's interest in Mary was increasing, the last vestige of sanity as regarding my son's affairs vanished It sounds absurd—unbelievable—but I have no clear recollection of the events of the next year."

He stopped abruptly, and the lines around his mouth etched themselves more deeply. Lillian and I shot fleeting and furtive glances at each other, not daring to risk either words or looks which would betray to him our excitement at the solving of a mystery which had intrigued us for many years.

For, in those days so filled with horror for Mary, Jack Leslie had unexpectedly come back to New York in spite of the decree of banishment which Hugh Grantland had put upon him. Then he had tried again to entrap her into a situation which would have made Noel believe intolerable things of her. At that time we had feared, from a preponderant weight of evidence, that Philip Veritzen had been instrumental in bringing Leslie back to this country—no one with less money and power could have flouted Hugh Grantland's prohibition — and that the impressario had instigated the devilish plot against Mary. Then had come a murderous assault upon Noel by Leslie, and we had never been able to determine whether or not Veritzen had engineered that also—because it was so difficult to believe.

We finally had taken refuge in the belief that the great impresario must have been temporarily mad, and that the shock of Noel's wounding and narrow escape had brought him back to sanity.

"At last I began to come back to myself," Philip Veritzen went on, "slowly, with infinite pains, always trying to let no one discover I was doing it, I pieced together, with the aid of my returning memory, many of the events of my lost year. I found that I had not changed identities—my ailment was not the kind of amnesia that leads a man to forget his name—and that, as far as my threatrical organization went, I had carried on my various activities as usual. On only one subject was my mind a blank. I knew that Noel had been the victim of an attack, but that was all.

"But I remembered something else from a time prior to the masked dance affair. Jack Leslie had come to me, and offered to clear Noel of the charge which had caused his expulsion from college, in return for my pledge to aid him if he ever got into difficulties with the authorities. It seemed a small thing in return for Noel's clearing, and for a long time, I heard nothing more of Leslie.

"But one conviction forced itself upon me. The obsession that Noel must not marry Mary which was still mine, had been with me during my year of madness and forgetfulness. I feared that I might have been guilty of some dastardly act which had been blotted out of my memory. The fear has been with me ever since, but not strong enough to keep me from employing every possible expedient to prevent their marriage. I'm aware you knew of those efforts."

Plans To Enlarge Activities Made by Garden Club

A NEW unit of the Marion Garden club, which will enable the club to enlarge its membership and increase the scope of its activities, is being organized, it was announced yesterday at the last meeting of the 1940 season with Mrs. W. A. Dennis of Chelsea avenue, Vernon Heights.

Interest shown in the club, its flower shows and civic work has led to the organization of the new unit, officers said.

The 1941 officers, who assumed their duties yesterday, are Mrs. Jay Maish, president; Mrs. Francis Huber, vice president; Mrs. Francis B. Jennings, recording secretary; Mrs. Hector S. Young, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Howard Geer, treasurer.

Members exhibited arrangements of fall foliage and berried shrubs, the exhibits numbered but unnamed, for criticism by the club. An arrangements by Mrs. John Smith won the popular acclaim and is now on display at the garden center in the south room of City library.

A dessert luncheon was served by the hostesses, Mrs Dennis, Mrs Edwin C. Dee, Mrs. Philip Guthery, Mrs. Alfred Donithen, Mrs. Huber, Mrs. R. T. Lewis and Miss Louise Kling

Arrangements for yesterday's meeting were completed at a meeting of the retiring and incoming executive boards on Thursday with the retiring president, Miss Maud Gorham of South Main street. The sum of $10 was voted to the City hospital Iron Lung fund.

The club will resume its meetings on Feb. 7 at the home of the new president on King avenue, Vernon Heights.

SCENES FROM FEATURE BOOKED AT PALACE

Palace To Present Drama of American Revolution

"The Howards of Virginia" To Be Shown 3 Days with Cary Grant, Martha Scott Starred.

A dramatic, blood-tingling epic of the American Revolution, "The Howards of Virginia," will open at the Palace theater tomorrow for a three-day run ending Tuesday.

Cary Grant and Martha Scott are co-starred in the production, based on Elizabeth Page's best-selling novel, "The Tree of Liberty." Miss Scott has her first stellar role since she was brought to the public's attention in "Our Town."

Steeped in the history of the Revolutionary period, the film is especially timely at present since it touches upon the aspirations of the colonists for the American way of life.

Story of Frontiersman.

Grant portrays Matt Howard, a hardy, untamed frontiersman who falls in love with a gracious Virginia belle and, with her, builds a home in the wilderness.

On Wednesday the Palace will feature "Dr. Christian Meets the Women," the newest addition to the series starring Jean Hersholt. The story has to do with the practice of a "quack" who starts a reducing fad, using health-damaging methods. Dr. Christian, a small town physician, discovers the fallacies of the "system."

Colman-Rogers Comedy.

"Lucky Partners," a merry comedy starring Ronald Colman and Ginger Rogers, will be featured on the Palace screen Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Colman plays the role of an artist who contends that every marriage should begin with a honeymoon. Since an insurance man, the fiance of Miss Rogers doesn't believe in such foolishness, Colman insists that if a sweepstakes ticket owned jointly by Miss Rogers and himself wins, he must be allowed to take the girl on a strictly platonic trip to some of the nation's beauty spots before she settles down to matrimony. The ticket wins and—much to the irritation of the about-to-be bridegroom, Coleman and Miss Rogers set out for the trip.

Outstanding in the supporting cast are Jack Carson, who plays the insurance man, and Spring Byington who has the role of the heroine's fluttery aunt.

Gene Autry Film on Double Bill Booked for State

"Radio Ranch," a new western comedy starring Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette, will highlight the screen program at the State theater tomorrow and Monday. Booked with it on the double feature bill is "I Take This Oath," starring Gordon Jones.

Scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday are Paul Cavanaugh in "Lost on the Western Front" and Janet Gaynor and Douglas Fairbanks Jr. in "Young in Heart."

For Thursday through Saturday the State has booked "Irene" starring Anna Neagle and Ray Milland and "Secret Valley," starring Richard Arlen.

To Be Shown on Double Bill with "Two Girls on Broadway."

"Typhoon" and "Two Girls on Broadway" provide a variety in screen fare for the Marion theater over the week-end, starting with a midnight show and continuing through tomorrow and Monday.

Dorothy Lamour and Robert Preston have the leading roles in "Typhoon," an exciting picture dealing with love and adventure in the tropics. The story of "Two Girls on Broadway" concerns three young people who try to "crash Broadway," and the film has a continuous musical background as well as a number of musical variety scenes. Starred in the cast are Lana Turner, Joan Blondell and George Murphy.

Two other outstanding features have been scheduled for a double bill Tuesday and Wednesday, "Little Old New York," starring Alice Faye and Fred MacMurray, and "And One Was Beautiful," starring Robert Cummings and Laraine Day.

Booked for Thursday through Saturday are Cesar Romero in "Viva Cisco Kid" and Charles Bigford in "South of Karanga." The program also will include one of the theater's new serial feature, "The Adventures of the Red Rider."

STARS OF COMEDY FILM NOW AT OHIO

Jimmie Stewart and Rosalind Russell drink a toast to love and laughs in this scene from their co-starring hit, "No Time for Comedy," which came to the screen yesterday for a week's stay.

Reunion of Brothers at Prospect Ends Separation Lasting 42 Years

Chance Circumstance Unites Elmer and Sylvester Fry After Each Believed Other Had Died.

Elmer E. Fry, 66, of Harwick, Pa., and Sylvester L. Fry, 61, of Prospect, brothers, were reunited at the latter's home this week after not having seen each other for 42 years, during most of which time each believed the other was dead.

Their reunion came after a friend of the Prospect brother returned recently from a visit to Pennsylvania and reported hearing of the whereabouts of an "Elmer Fry." Sylvester sent a letter and it was forwarded to his brother, the beginning of a series of messages and the first word to pass between them since Elmer left their Gallia county farm home back in 1898.

United at Prospect

Their letters led to a reunion and Elmer arrived at his brother's Prospect home Wednesday. They visited with the latter's daughter, Mrs. Emery Kline of 508 East Farming street Thursday and Elmer planned to return to Pennsylvania today.

The brothers are the only survivors of eight children. Both were born in Gallia county. Elmer left his home when he was 23 years old to join the United States forces in the Spanish-American war. He was in military service 12 years and later traveled extensively through the west before making his home in Pennsylvania.

He neither wrote nor received letters from members of his family and as the years passed by took it for granted that they had died, he explained in an interview yesterday.

"It certainly was a surprise to get my brother's letter," he said.

Thought Brother Dead

Likewise, members of the family lost touch with the son who joined the army and took it for granted that he had passed away, Sylvester recounted. The latter moved directly from Gallia to Marion county, making his home at Prospect where he has been in track maintenance work for the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad since 1912.

One other unusual item cropped out during the brief interview. Elmer, a miner, attended the United Mine Workers of America convention at Columbus two years ago. Unknown to him his only surviving brother lived some 30 miles away at Prospect.

Comedy Hit Now at Ohio

Jimmie Stewart and Rosalind Russell Starred in "No Time for Comedy."

Ironically named "No Time for Comedy," the new Jimmie Stewart-Rosalind Russell picture now at the Ohio is rated one of the screwball hits of the season. It will continue as the feature attraction through Thursday.

Next Friday another new film, "Public Deb No. 1," featuring Brenda Joyce and George Murphy, will open.

"No Time for Comedy" was adapted from the S. N. Behrman play which had a long and successful run on Broadway. Julius J. and Philip G. Epstein adapted the play for the screen.

Stewart plays a cub reporter from the sticks who suddenly finds himself and his plays a huge success on Broadway. Miss Russell plays his actress wife who protects him from the Broadway wolves and the Park avenue blondes.

In this latter category is Genevieve Tobin as a wealthy woman interested in young artists. She influences Stewart to quit writing comedies and go in for more soulful stuff, but Miss Russell comes to the rescue before her husband's career is shattered.

The role of Miss Tobin's exasperated husband gives Charlie Ruggles a serio-comedy role. In this picture he confines his drinking activities to milk. Allyn Joslyn is the vitriolic, acid-tongued stage director and Clarence Kolk has a comedy role of a producer who "yesses" all his assistants. Dusky Louise Beavers plays a theatrical maid who sees all and tells all, in the best comedy tradition.

William Keighley, the director, is Miss Tobin's husband in real-life. Among his hits have been "The Fighting 69th," "Brother Rat," and "Yes, My Darling Daughter."

Construction of the first 10,000 kilometers of railroad in Manchuria, one-fourth of the length of highways used by buses, has been completed.

— to the "boys" of Company D.

To "our boys," former Guardsmen who are about to be inducted into the regular army of the United States, we pay a proud and heartfelt tribute. Yours is the privilege of forming the first bulwark of our national defense—a bulwark that is becoming more and more urgent day by day.

You will be sacrificing one year, three years or more—but, democracy and freedom is a priceless heritage. The spirit of men who have fought five wars in the past one hundred and sixty-five years is with you. They have a message that is far more inspiring than ours—"Democracy must live; we must not have died in vain. Keep democracy and freedom in America forever." We at home do pledge ourselves to keep faith with them and do our share in our national defense program.

So, to the boys of Company "D" we bid Godspeed—bon voyage—and same return.

God has blessed America

NOTHING can soften the sadness of parting from our young men who are answering the call to the colors.

But just watching them swing by, you know there is a cause for giving thanks on hundred knows that they are the kind of young men they are.

May we all find ways of telling them the heartening appreciation in our hearts for the high purpose behind the noble sacrifice they are making. God speed them . . . and return them home safely and soon.

MAY'S

ONCE again Europe is war-torn. But the angel of Peace spreads her wings protectively over America, and again today our young folks are being called to arms, to protect our country, because we realize how sacred our democracy is—how firmly we must cling to and secure our place as a nation at peace for all time.

HARDING BLASTS WOODWARD, 20-6, FOR TENTH STRAIGHT WI

3,500 Fans See Prexies Keep Record Perfect; Hurst Scores First.

By CHARLES HOSTETLER
Marion Star Sports Editor

MARION HARDING'S grid machine rolled to a 20-6 victory over Toledo Woodward before some 3,500 fans at Harding stadium last night, keeping the current record spotless and adding the tenth game to its string of victories.

The Presidents used eight minutes getting their first touchdown. Day Hurst, benched all season by injuries, carried the ball on the first scoring jaunt. He went over standing up from 18 yards out after a 20-yard Roberts-to-Creasap aerial set the stage for the score.

The lead was boosted to 13-0 by halftime. Charlie Roberts lugged the second touchdown in the last four minutes of the second period. He went the last nine yards after Warren Ferguson had clicked off 15, following Roberts' toss to Kemmerly, good for a 26-yard gain.

After the second period score Wayne Short came up with a perfect boot from placement. He duplicated later in the game and his efforts indicate that at last Coach Bill Williams may have found some one who can be depended upon for the highly important points after touchdowns.

Bears Strike Back

Woodward's Polar Bears struck back fast in the early seconds of the third period, capitalizing on a blocked punt to whittle Marion's lead to 13-6. Bob Myneder broke through to spill Punter John Edington and Bob Ramer recovered for the Bears on Harding's five-yard stripe. In four attempts the visitors punched through for the touchdown.

Another brief aerial barrage put Harding in position for the final score. Aided by a 15-yard penalty for unnecessary roughness, the Presidents waded deep into Woodward soil. Roberts passed to Kemmerly for 10 and Hurst carried the touchdown. Again Short converted from placement to swell Marion's lead to 20-6.

By any comparison except final score and necessarily, offensive punch, Harding was 10 to 1 better than Woodward. Statistics show the Presidents outgained the foe 164 yards to 12, compiled eight first downs to one completed four passes to two, intercepted two Toledo aerials and knocked down 12 more.

Short Hard to Stop

As in the Ashland game a week ago the opposition was repeatedly thrown for long losses. Yardage lost by Toledo during scrimmage actually was greater than yardage gained. Again Wayne Short, the same chap who booted the placements, spent most of the evening in the foe's backfield. He qualified for an Ashland letter last week and earned another from Woodward last night, so much time did he spend behind the enemy line.

But Short wasn't the only lineman to turn the trick. Martin Lewis, his 149-pound running mate at the opposite guard, was doing almost as well. From end to end the veteran line has been functioning smoothly and efficiently, particularly on defense. But with the novice backfield directing the offense, Harding's attack never has gotten out of low gear. Observers are wondering if it's because last year's veteran backs are so sorely missed or if Coach Williams may be holding back for more important contests.

During the course of events Coach Williams tossed in every one down to the third water carrier, indicating that the game was the "breather" it was touted. It gave the mentor a chance to look over his squad, which now stands three-deep at some positions. Likewise it gave the same opportunity to scouts, among them Nick Wasylik, Bucyrus High coach, who was on hand with his entire team. The Presidents are scheduled to visit the Lane street field at Bucyrus next week but that encounter, as last night, should be another "breeze."

Toledo Band Here

Woodward's 40-piece marching band joined the Harding High band in opening ceremonies. Both performed at halftime. They participated in a pre-game parade through the uptown section and the visitors staged an impromptu celebration at Main and Center streets an hour before game time.

But here's what happened after the opening kickoff:

Ferguson received McKenzie's kick on Harding's 25. In a trade of punts Marion gained 23, taking the ball near midfield. Roberts and Petty failed on line plays. Roberts hurled a pass to Creasap for 20 yards, the receiver dashing over the goal line, but being ruled out of bounds on the 26-yard line. Two line plays failed and Marion passed on third down. Officials ruled that Woodward interfered with Kemmerly, a potential pass receiver, and gave Marion a first down on the 18. Hurst barged over standing up on the first try. The attempted placement by Bascos was low. Marion led 6-0 with eight minutes played.

Creasap Intercepts

Short's kick-off went to Woodward's 35. An attempted shovel pass was intercepted by Creasap, giving Harding a first down 30 yards out. Bellknap made three. Marion was held for downs and Woodward kicked out of danger, the ball going out on Marion's 30-yard line. Ferguson picked up eight yards through the right side as the quarter ended.

A punt exchange gave Marion possession on the Woodward 40. Marion was penalized five yards for taking too much time in the huddle and Ferguson booted into the end zone. Keller knocked down an attempted pass before Woodward booted, Ferguson receiving on Marion's 47. Roberts hit the right side for five and Petty picked up another five. Ferguson lost four. Roberts stepped back to hurl the ball to Kemmerly for a 26-yard gain and first down on Woodward's 26.

Only four minutes remained in the first half. Ferguson went wide to the right for 15 yards before being driven out on the nine. Roberts cut back through tackle for the touchdown. Short added the point from placement and Marion led, 13-0. Woodward was penalized for offsides on the first play after the kick-off and was forced to punt, Marion regaining the ball on the Harding 38. Edington's return kick went over the goal and Toledo completed one pass for a short gain as the half closed.

Second Half

Bellknap received Woodward's half-time kick-off. Marion punted and Woodward received on its own 32. Successive five-yard penalties gave the visitors a first down on the 48. A punt went to the Marion 22 and Edington's return kick was blocked and recovered by Toledo on the Harding 10-yard line. It took four attempts to punch through the Harding forward wall, Bob Ramer finally scoring to cut Marion's lead to 13-6. Keller blocked the attempted placement, Kemmerly grounding the ball. Edington received the kick-off and returned 20 yards to his own 40. The teams traded punts, Ferguson making a 20-yard return to give Harding a first down on the Woodward 40. A 15-yard penalty for unnecessary roughness gave the Presidents a first down on the 25, as the third period ended.

Hurst broke through for 10 yards. A Roberts-to-Kemmerly pass was good for eight and Hurst plunged the remaining distance for the score Again Short's placement was good. The score, Marion 20, Toledo 6. Woodward kept possession of the ball only for fleeting moments of the remainder of the period, usually long enough to see three attempted passes knocked down and then punt into Harding territory. Harding still was plugging goalward and when the game-ending gun sounded held the ball with a first down and goal to go on the five-yard line.

"Coast-to-Coast" Gridders Prove Game Can Be Fun; They See the Nation and Charge It to Football

By ED L. CAMPBELL
AP Sports Writer

MONTICELLO, Ark. — Those coast-to-coast touchdown travelers, the "we-don't-care" boys from Monticello A. & M. college, are giving high pressure football another kick in the pants this fall.

Coach Stewart A. Ferguson, who annually proves that football is fun if you don't have to win, posted his usual September notice on the campus bulletin board. It simply stated that any boy who wants to travel from New York to California should join the grid squad.

Posting that notice just about completed Ferguson's coaching duties With four regular college jobs and a heavy teaching schedule, this quiet little upsetter of pigskin tradition just can't be bothered with instructing the would-be athletes too.

"Don't Have To Win"

"The boys who want to play figure out their own system," Ferguson explains in a quiet voice that frequently fades away to a whisper. "The two co-captains take charge and the squad fixes its own training rules, works out plays and executes them. I just explain the rules. They are about the only fundamentals we follow.

"The boys don't have to win. They don't have to tackle. They don't have to block. They can—and do—use any formation that strikes them as suitable to meet a given situation either on offense or defense."

It reads like an autumnal nightmare, but the Ferguson plan works. The Bollweevils put on shows in seven states last year and gathered reams of publicity. Incidentally they won one game—breaking Ferguson's no-victory record.

This fall the team plays in ten states Ferguson said he had to refuse offers for 20 additional games. Two home games will remind the student body that football is on the sports curriculum.

Refused Four Times

Ferguson turned down the coaching job four times. He finally took over in 1938 with these provisions:

1. He was to accept no pay for coaching.
2. He was not to be required to win a single game.
3. He was to be permitted to coach any way he wished.

With a student body counted by tens and no alumni money for football subsidies, Ferguson couldn't think of playing pressure football. His squad of 30 is composed of lads from the surrounding towns and countryside—"teenage kids, husky farmers, bespectacled scholars and even a minister. All must pay their own tuition and must pass their subjects. (The squad in 1939 was above the student body average—with no failures.)

No Victories, But Nice Trips

The coach decided that if his team couldn't win victories it could have nice road trips because schools seeking victories are glad to pay the freight for their Saturday afternoon victims. Monticello is a willing sacrifice to the "do-or-die" tribes.

The Bollweevils don't lay down before opponents. On the contrary, they put on an amazing fight with an offense that's 80 per cent passes. But——

"We play for keeps," explains Co-Captain Coy Brown, "only the other fella's been doin' the keepin."

Ferguson said his no-tackling, no-blocking system last year virtually eliminated injuries.

"A boy doesn't need to be taught to tackle, that comes natural," Ferguson says. "As for blocking—the best way in the world to block is to step on the other guy's toes."

"On offense, the interference follows the ball carrier. When our ball carrier sees he can't go forward, he laterals the ball to the next man. You haven't any blockers that way but you have more ball carriers.

The 1940 team plays Lousiana College, Kentucky Teachers, Lebanon Valley (Pa.), Texas Teachers, University of Nevada, California State, South Dakota Mines, Hofstra College (New York City), Missouri Teachers and a Philadelphia opponent to be decided. In addition to those road games, Northwest Mississippi college and Hendrix will be met at home.

They See Sights

Ferguson books only games on which he can work in side trips to all places of historical, geographical and social interest enroute. This year Monticello is visiting Hollywood, Old Mexico, Yellowstone Park, Pike's Peak, the Grand Canyon, Alcatraz Prison, Royal Gorge, Mount Vernon, Washington, D. C., the San Francisco and New York World's Fairs, and numerous other famous points.

"We work it out so the players do not lose out in their school work," Ferguson explained. "Most of the boys are majoring in physical education, carrying nine hours under me, I meet my classes regularly on all trips. Other professors assign regular work to be done away from home and I supervise study periods on the road. The boys learn a lot from traveling and miss nothing from their books."

Plaque Dedication Honors County's Heroes of 1776

D. A. R. Memorial to Revolutionary War Soldiers Unveiled in Patriotic Ceremony at Courthouse.

The memory of 15 Revolutionary war soldiers known to be buried in Marion county was honored when a bronze plaque bearing their names was dedicated in a community program yesterday at the courthouse. The plaque is the gift of Captain William Hendricks chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and is the chapter's contribution to the nationwide celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the organization.

Approximately 300 members of the chapter and residents of the city and county attended the dedication held at 4 o'clock. Taking part in the program were members of Bird-McGinnis Post No. 162, American Legion, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and the Harding High school band. Mrs. Roy Gottschall, regent of the chapter, presided. The plaque was presented to the county by Mrs. Charles Waters, a past regent and was accepted on behalf of the county by Common Pleas Judge Hector S. Young.

The program opened with "The Stars and Stripes Forever," by Harding High school band under the direction of Homer E. Hoffman, and the invocation was spoken by Rev. Howard L. Olewiler, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. Taking part in presentation of the colors were R. A. Todd, commander of Bird-McGinnis Post No. 162, American Legion, Millard Baldwin, county commander of the American Legion, Lewis Sherman, chaplain of the post. Frank Kette and James Sanders, color bearers, member of Troop 5, Boy Scouts, and a group of Girl Scouts.

The benediction was spoken by Mr. Sherman, and the program closed with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by the assembly accompanied by the band, music by the band, and the retirement of the colors.

Unveiling Ceremony.

The tablet, which is of burnished bronze, and in addition to the names of the Revolutionary War soldiers bears the wheel and distaff, the seal of the D. A. R. and the names of the donors, was unveiled by Miss Carolyn King and Miss Barbara Gottschall, descendants of Revolutionary war soldiers.

In presenting the tablet to the county Mrs. Waters paid tribute to the men whose names were engraved upon it. The war service of each one has been verified by the war department at Washington and each grave has been marked by the D. A. R. as a soldier of the War of the Revolution, she said. "The men were among the first to light the torch of liberty on the shores of America, and their descendants, having carried that torch for over 150 years, it now behooves us in our day to lift it higher that Liberty, or Democracy as we understand it, perish not from the Earth."

Acceptance Speech.

"It is mete and proper that the plaque bearing the names of these men should decorate this building," Judge Young said in accepting the plaque which bears the name of one of his ancestors. "If it were not for these men we would have no such a meeting as we are holding today. When we see their names we should remember that one way to honor them is to renew our strength by reading the constitution that has been handed down to us. I am glad to represent the government in Marion county of which the commissioners are the head. I am glad to accept the plaque and have it as a continual reminder of the privileges we enjoy, and which were made possible by these founders."

Judge Young recalled that the men whose names were on the plaque founded the principles of our government in the name of religious and political freedom and the right to freedom of government. "These are the principles these men stood for. History has written their acts, time has proved what they stood for; we can carry on these principles by thinking American, acting American and opposing anything that will tear down American traditions and American ways. They have done their duty, it is for us to dedicate ourselves to the American way," he concluded.

Judge Young paid tribute to the donors of the plaque and called attention to the fact that since organizaion of the D. A. R. 50 years ago it has stood forth as one of America's most patriotic bodies. During this time, he said, they have disseminated information concerning Revolutionary heroes, their history and principles. "There has been no time when this is more approuriate or necessary than now," he said. "We have a modern implement of war not known till now—propaganda. Norway was conquered by propaganda and the people favorable to the enemy. France fell because of propaganda—it is for us as a people to fight the invasion of any propaganda that tends to undermine our American principles."

Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts taking part in the program were: Barbara Smith, flag bearer. Maxine Culp, Genevieve Basford, Virginia Werts, guards; Dan MacDonald, Richard Howard, James Welch, James Williams, Kent Daum, Miles Doyle, Fred Sampson, Robert Irvin, Eugene Myers, William Chapman, John Stock and Carl Morris. All are members of Troop No. 5. They were accompanied by Miss Dorothy Brownell, Girl Scout director, and Charles H. Howard, scoutmaster.

The Honor Roll

The plaque which has been placed at the southwest corner of the courthouse bears the names of the following: Ebenezer Ballentine, Marion cemetery; William Britton and Joshua Van Fleet, Pleasant Hill cemetery; Israel Clark, Smith cemetery; Joseph Gillet and Nathaniel Wyatt, Wyatt cemetery; Frazer Gray, Union cemetery; Andrew Hyde Jr., Claridon cemetery; John Irey, old Caledonia cemetery; John Lindsey and William Stayner, Deal cemetery; Barnabas Otis, Paw Paw cemetery; David Potts, Quarry Street cemetery; Mathew Scott and James Swinnerton, Brush Ridge cemetery.

On the chapter committee to arrange for the plaque and the dedication ceremony were Mrs. Roy Gottschall, Mrs. Clarence L. Rutherford and Mrs. Fanny Benson.

Followed by Tea

The members met for a tea and their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Harvey T. Gracely of East Church street, following the program, assisting hostesses were Mrs. Harry J. Mautz, Mrs. Dan LaMarche and Miss Mary Louise Gracely. Composer's day was observed, honoring Mrs. Harold K. Mouser who wrote the musical arrangement for the poem, "The Open Door," by Mrs. Grace Coolidge. The song was sung by Mrs. Clarence L. Rutherford with Mrs. Mouser at the piano. Group singing completed the program hour.

Mrs. W. J. Rowley was appointed Ohio News Press Relations chairman, succeeding Mrs. Carmen Shepherd who resigned. STATEMENT ON DOCTRINE AWAITED BY LUTHERANS

By The Associated Press

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 12—Delegates to the 12th biennial convention of the United Lutheran church of America hoped for a statement today from its titular head, Rev. F. H. Knubel, on a matter of a single word in scriptural doctrine that may affect the unity action of 2,000,000 Lutherans in this country and Canada.

The doctrinal subject is one of three points which must be approved by the U. L. C. A. here and the American Lutheran Church at Detroit before a cooperative federation between the two branches of Lutheran faith can be established.

Debate was to be resumed over the meaning of the word "errorless" in a statement regarding "God's word, the Bible." The statement asserted the separate books that make up the scriptures are "related to one another, and taken together, constitute a complete, errorless, unbreakable whole of which Christ is the center..."

Dr. H. Grady Davis of the Chicago Lutheran seminary said the word "errorless" was misleading and confusing. Dr. H. H. Bagger, Pittsburgh, secretary of the U. L. C. A. commission that helped draw up the statements, urged adoption.

Official of New Marion Factory To Be Honored at Monday Luncheon

Five Organizations To Join in Welcome for Executives.

DR. CHAS. COPELAND SMITH

Dr. Charles Copeland Smith, one of Chicago's most outstanding speakers and broadcasters, will give the principal talk at a luncheon at Hotel Harding Monday at 11:45 a. m. when officials of the Universal Cooler Corp. will be guests.

The meeting is being sponsored by Marion's four service clubs and the Chamber of Commerce as a welcome for officials of the Universal Corp. which is moving here from Detroit. It will be open to members of the Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions and Co-Operative clubs, Chamber of Commerce and to the contributors to the fund to bring the Universal Corp. to Marion.

To Introduce Officials

The company's officials will be introduced for the first time to most Marion men. Some of the officials, however, have attended previous meetings and Chamber of Commerce groups and others interested in bringing the company here.

Dr. Smith, the speaker, was educated at the University of Manchester in England and holds a degree of Ph.D. from that institution. During the World war he received the King's Medal and the thanks of parliament for establishing and supervising war relief work on the Isle of Man.

Dr. Smith is a citizen of the United States and has lived here since 1919. He is one of the oldest and best-known broadcasters in the mid-west, having founded, with Bill Hay, the Radio Round Table.

Former Minister

For many years he wrote a daily column for the Chicago Daily News on social subjects. He has successfully been a minister, sociologist, radio commentator and lecturer.

At 10 o'clock Monday morning he will address an assembly of Harding High school students at the Palace theater, Principal O. H. P. Snyder reported. His topic will center around such themes as opportunities for youth and America's future.

OHIO WORKERS AIDED BY U. S. WAR ORDERS

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 12—Thousands of Ohio workers are benefiting by the rising tempo of national defense.

The state bureau of unemployment compensation reported a 21.7 per cent increase in job placements for the month of September.

Placements numbered 17,195, a total exceeded only by the record high of 17,554 last May, Administrator H. C. Atkinson announced.

Mounting army and navy orders are stimulating the gains, Atkinson said. In the last 15 days of September the army let contracts in Ohio worth $70,322,194, sending the army total since June 13 to $114,174,521 and boosting to $172,089,587 the total defense commitments affecting Ohio during that period.

The navy ordered an additional $1,366,623 worth of equipment during the latter part of September, raising to $56,277,310 its Ohio total since June 13.

Bulk of naval orders went to Cleveland, Hamilton, Cincinnati, Toledo, Youngstown, Niles and Lorain firms.

A total of 363,428 persons were actively seeking employment through the BUC at the end of September. New benefits paid last month totaled $1,501,680, a 28.9 per cent drop from August.

Defense was the motivation behind a new $1,567,031 appropriation to the national youth administration's Ohio division.

Workshop projects, where Ohio youths may prepare for jobs in defense industries, are to be expanded.

Although more than 9,000 youths are employed in that program, 17,000 more await assignment, said State Administrator S. Burns Weston.

145 INDUSTRIAL CLAIMS IN COUNTY LAST MONTH

A total of 145 claims for state workmen's compensation were filed by Marion county workers during September, a report if the state industrial commission shows. Two of the claims were based on cases resulting in permanent partial disability, 23 for more than seven days lost time, 15 for seven days or less lost time and 105 were medical cases only. Time loss listed in the claims amounted to 1,515 days.

Claims throughout the state were the largest for any one month since October, 1937. A total of 19,890 injury and occupational disease claims were filed including 91 resulting in fatalities.

Election Follows Stirring Campaign at Junior High

Four ninth grade boys won the election yesterday of Vernon Heights Junior High school officers. After a spirited week of election activities, including a rally Wednesday in which one candidate had a band parade on behalf of his campaign, the following were elected yesterday:

Rex Kilbourne, president; Bob Fazio, vice president; Bob Virden, secretary; Stewart Young, treasurer.

The election procedure was photographed by the school photography club, of which Alwyn H. Crane is sponsor, for reproduction in the 1941 school annual.

Voting was done at three precincts, with voting booths, printed ballots, precinct registers and ballot boxes adding a touch of the "real thing" to the election. The candidates evolved interesting and colorful campaign cards and literature. It became a fad among the student body to tie favorite candidates' cards on a string and wear them as a decoration during the week.

CARE OF WOUNDED IN WAR IMPROVES

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH
Associated Press Science Writer

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12—The "lightning" methods of modern warfare are being compensated for by lightning transportation and treamtent of wounded men, two military surgeons declared today.

In discussions before the annual meeting of the Association of military Surgeons, Col. Gustavus Blech of Chicago and Col. David N. W. Grant of the U. S. army medical corps declared that methods of saving human lives were keeping pace with the efforts to destroy them.

Dr. Blech said that electrosurgery, the use of the electric knife which seals blood vessels as it cuts them, was a valuable addition to the equipment of a surgeon in wartime because it reduces bleeding, shock, post-operative pain and infection.

Dr. Grant pointed to the example set by the German medical corps in evacuating wounded men in airplane ambulances. In the German campaigns, he declared, the wounded were concentrated at airports and flying ambulances, operating with almost clocklike precision, took aboard from 15 to 20 men who were then attended by a nurse and physician, and flew them in a few hours to base hospitals equipped for any emergency.

SEMINARY STUDENTS DECLARE AGAINST DRAFT

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—A score of young men students of Union Theological seminary made known today their intentions not to comply "in any way" with the selective service act.

At the same time, Col. Arthur V. McDermott, New York selective service director, announced machinery had been set up to round up draft evaders.

In a signed statement which the students said would be filed with the "draft board" they declared, "to live in harmony with the will of God * * * we must obey our conscience before we obey the state."

Cardington Event Honors Veteran Banker and Wife

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD M. WILLITS

Cardington, a southern Morrow county community of some 1,500 residents, took time out from other activities last night to pay tribute to Edward M. Willits, who has served the town as a banker for more than half a century, and to Mrs. Daisy M. Willits, who has been his wife for 50 years.

Last night's event was in the form of a Rotary club party, but the celebration was a toast to the couple from the entire community.

Delaware Pastor Talks

Forty-five men and women attended the Rotary party for Mr. and Mrs. Willits. A chicken dinner was served and the banquet table was centered with a large cake.

A talk was given by Rev. Father W. C. O'Brien of Delaware, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic church there, who spoke on "Rotary's Stand and the Preservation of the Republic." Accordion selections were presented by Louis Shaffer.

Guests included wives of several members, Mrs. V. W. Peck and her daughter, Miss Claudia Peck, both of Cardington, Roy Cackley, president of the Galion Rotary club and Roger Godfrey, Clarence Kirk and Arthur Monger, all of Galion.

It was a few months more than 52 years ago that Mr. Willits began his first work in a Cardington bank, serving first as a teller. Mr. Willits had been out of school only little more than a year, and had spent most of that year on a farm near Cardington before he tried his hand at work in a bank.

On Charter Roll

A few years later, in 1904, he became on the charter directors and first cashier of the Citizens' bank, positions he has retained continuously since that time. He is one of two living men who were on the original board of directors, and is one of three of the original 30 stockholders still living. The other director is C. H. Ruhlman, veteran Cardington hardware merchant, and the other original stockholder in addition to Mr. Ruhlman and Mr. Willits is Virgil W. Peck.

Reviews Progress

Mr. Willits, looking back over more than half a century of the banking business, never ceases to marvel at the changes that have taken place in banking methods and the growth of banking since his young manhood.

"I spent my first 10 years in banking work without having the help of an adding machine—it was all 'head and hand' work then."

Incidentally, when the Citizens' bank was chartered and started to do business, Mr. Willits, as cashier, also was teller, bookkeeper, and office boy. "I ran the place alone for about six months, and believe me it was a job to do all the work. It wasn't very long until I had to have some help."

Today the bank has assets of more than half a million dollars and employes several persons.

THREE CARS DAMAGED IN POST-GAME COLLISION

Cars driven by Jack Ruth of 211 Bain avenue, Norman Richendollar of 247 Oak street and Carl Ulery of 138 West Mark street were damaged when they piled up in a line of heavy traffic following the Harding-Toledo Woodward high school football game, police reported. The accident occurred on East Church street near High street shortly before 10:30 p. m.

Minor damage resulted to a car driven by Melville F. Briner of 107 Flea avenue when it figured in a collision with an auto driven by Robert Pendon of 134 East Columbia street at West Center and Cayuga street about 1 a. m. today.

Cars driven by Charles A. Welch of 161 St. Clair street and and Clarence Haywood of near Agosta were damaged in a traffic mishap at West Center and St. Clair streets yesterday afternoon.

CHURCH GROUP HEARS STATE M. E. OFFICER

Mrs. W. H. C. Goode of Sidney, secretary of missionary education for the Ohio Conference of the Methodist church, talked on the new Women's Society of Christian Service at a meeting of the Wesley Methodist church society last night at the church.

Mrs. Beth Monk conducted devotions on the topic, "My Job and I—Do We Fit?" and Mrs. Mary Clark sang. Reports of secretaries were given. The meeting followed a fellowship hour and supper at 6 and an afternoon session.

Devotions by Mrs. Effie McCrery on the topic, "Sharing Possessions," opened the afternoon program. The topic, "Our Inheritance," which preceded a map lesson, was given by Mrs. Leah Chaney. Miss Martha Ekey and Eugene Pletcher sang. A candlelight service for each mission pledge made so far was conducted by Mrs. Bertha Barkley.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY ENTERTAINED AT TEA

The Woman's Missionary society of Central Christian church held a tea Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Elmer Weimer of Cleveland avenue. Officers were assisting hostesses. Devotions by Mrs. L. M. Sager preceded a song by Mrs. Louis Sickel of Caledonia. The program on "Migrants and Their Problems," was led by Mrs. Kathryn Napoli. Mrs. Bert Swope played piano accordion selections. The president, Mrs. J. B. Swain, and Mrs. Frank Fairchild, presided at the tea table, which was centered with flowers in the society's colors of purple and white.

NEW BOWLING CENTER OPENS

Erie Teams Initiate Alleys; Large Crowd Present To Inspect Equipment.

An estimated 1,000 persons milled through Marion's new bowling plant, the Palace Recreation center, at 293 West Center street to take part in informal opening ceremonies last night. Many of them fired away at the ten pins and others just came to see the 12-lane establishment.

Ten teams, composed of Erie railroad officials and employes lined up at 7 p. m. to blast away in the first round of weekly league competition. A. W. Baker, superintendent of the Kent division of the Erie railroad with headquarters here, tossed the first ball down No. 6 lane.

From then until 9 p. m. the sports center resounded with the crash of ebony balls against maple sticks. A. L. Hinklin earned the honor of rolling the first double-century game and he accomplished it by the narrow squeak of a 201 round. Samuel Sharrock came up with the top series of 518 on rounds of 180-177-159.

Matches were somewhat lopsided. The Machinists No. 2 polished off the Boilermakers three straight, the Tank gang racked up consecutive victories, Machinists No. 1 duplicated at the expense of the Office crew. Yard II, after winning two games, was nosed out by a single pin in the third by Yard A. Next week when the quintets square-off they'll be more evenly matched since last night's scores will serve as the basis for handicap ratings.

Tonight and tomorrow the center will be in operation for open bowling and Monday night the newly formed Ladies league will open its weekly schedule.

GALION — Dorothy Rieker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Rieker, and Jane Tullis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tullis, have been pledged to Alpha Omicron Pi, national sorority, at Miami university, Oxford, where both are freshmen students this year.

TEN STATES BAR REDS FROM NOVEMBER BALLOT

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—Ten states have barred the Communist party from the November 5 election ballot—four of them on the ground that it favors overthrow of the American form of government.

The ten are Arizona, Arkansas, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Ohio, Washington, and West Virginia.

Another state—Wisconsin—has refused the party places on the ballot because it has failed to poll sufficient votes in prior elections, but has allowed four of its candidates to run as independents.

Earl Browder, present Communist candidate for president, also made the race in 1936. He received 80,159 votes in approximately 35 states.
